

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

Plans Mapped For Invasion

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be started daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

Liberating Normandy was a supreme event in the European campaign of 1944, but it was only one of several concentric strokes upon Nazi Germany. In the east the Russians were flooding into Poland and the Balkans, and in the south Alexander's armies in Italy were pressing towards the river Po. Decisions had now to be taken about our next move in the Mediterranean, and it must be recorded with regret that these occasions the first important divergence on high strategy between ourselves and our American friends.

The design for final victory in Europe had been outlined in prolonged discussion at the Tehran Conference in November, 1943. First and foremost we had promised to carry out Overlord. Here was the dominating task, and no one disputed that here lay our prime duty. But we still wielded powerful forces in the Mediterranean, and the question had remained, "What should they do?" We had resolved that they should capture Rome, whose nearby airfields were needed for bombing Southern Germany. This accomplished, we planned to advance up the peninsula as far as the Pisa-Rimini line, and there hold as many enemy divisions as possible in Northern Italy. This, however, was not all. A third operation was also agreed upon, namely, an amphibious landing in the south of France, and it was on this project that controversy was about to descend. It was originally conceived as a feint or threat to keep German troops on the Riviera and stop them joining the battles in Normandy, but in Cairo the Americans had pressed for a real attack by ten divisions and at Tehran Stalin had supported them. I accepted the change, largely to put that here lay our prime duty. But we still wielded powerful forces in the Mediterranean, and the question had remained, "What should they do?" We had resolved that they should capture Rome, whose nearby airfields were needed for bombing Southern Germany. This accomplished, we planned to advance up the peninsula as far as the Pisa-Rimini line, and there hold as many enemy divisions as possible in Northern Italy. This, however, was not all. ### Capture of Rome Delayed

A second condition also governed Anvil's usefulness. Many of the forces needed for the operation—that is, in say, for the full-scale invasion as opposed to a feint or threat—would have to come from our armies in Italy. But these had first to accomplish the arduous and important task of seizing Rome and the airfields.

At Tehran we had confidently expected to reach Rome early in the spring, but this had proved impossible. The important descent at Anzio to accelerate the capture of Rome had drawn eight or ten German divisions away from the vital theatre, or more than was expected to be attracted to the Riviera by Anvil. This in effect superseded it by achieving its object. Nevertheless, the Riviera project went forward as if nothing had happened.

Apart from Anvil hanging somewhat vaguely in the future, some of the finest divisions of the armies in Italy had rightly been assigned to the main operation of Overlord and had sailed for England before the end of 1943. Alexander had thus been weakened and Kesselring had been strengthened. The Germans had sent reinforcements to Italy, had parried the Anzio swoop, and had stopped us entering Rome until just before D-day.

When Rome fell on June 4 the problem had to be reviewed. Should we go on with Anvil or should we make a new plan?

General Eisenhower naturally wanted to strengthen his attack in Northwest Europe by all available means. The American Chiefs of Staff agreed with Eisenhower, holding rigidly to the maxim of concentration at the decisive point, which in their eyes meant only Northwest Europe. They were supported by the President, who was mindful of the agreements made with Stalin many months before at Tehran. Yet all was changed by the delay in Italy.

Soon after D-day General Marshall came to England and expressed his concern about yet another problem. Enormous forces were accumulating in the United States, and should join the battle as soon as possible. The solution which General Marshall proposed was to capture entirely new bases in either the west or the south of France, and preferably in the west because this was the more quickly reached from America. I was fully alive to all this, and had for some time contemplated a descent on the Biscay coast from North Africa, even though this could not be achieved before the end of July.

This Little Piggie Stayed Home

HOSPITAL CHECKING LOSS

Thieves May Be Harboring Disease-Infected Guinea Pigs

Six guinea pigs which may be diseased were stolen from an outside cage-room at Royal Jubilee Hospital Monday night and authorities are fearful that the loss may have serious complications for hospital patients.

"A thing like this could be the cause of a healthy person being sent to a sanatorium," said hospital administrator George Masters this morning.

Twenty-one of the small, furry rodents are used by the hospital to detect the presence of dangerous ailments in patients where diagnosis is otherwise difficult to determine.

The animals react like humans to the presence of many different germs. If a patient is suspected of having tuberculosis, a guinea pig is injected with a serum taken from the patient's body. Reaction of the animal is proof of the illness.

"About a dozen of the animals were injected," said Mr. Masters. "As far as we know, the six that were taken were not."

But the thief may have mixed up the guinea pigs in their individual cages in choosing finest looking specimens.

"We will have to do a double check on all our experiments," he stated.

If there is a mix-up, the thief may have a diseased animal in his possession.

Police revealed that a screen door, on an outside shed where the guinea pigs are looked after by hospital gardeners, was forced. It is possible that the theft was perpetrated by youngsters who often watch the animals through a window.

Parents should question youngsters about any they have seen or heard about.

If allowed to breed, a pair of guinea pigs can produce 1,000 offspring in the space of one year.

DOG THAT WAS A BEAR FAST BECOMING A RUG

CAMPBELL RIVER — A 200-pound bear that was looking for a soft touch in Campbellton Monday night is now half way to becoming a rug.

Mrs. Frank Stapley noticed what, in twilight, appeared to be a dog in her backyard.

As she was about to chase it away it growled and came toward her. Knowing by then it was a bear, she picked up her two little children who had been playing outside, ran into her house, and locked the door.

She telephoned a neighbor, Beverly Hopkins, who set off in pursuit with a .303 rifle and one cartridge. He made his one shot count in the fast-fading light.

STORMY SEA SNATCHES SIX

Scots Lifeboatmen Drown In Sight of Own Homes

ARBRATH, Scotland (AP) — Six lifeboatmen, weary from an all-night battle with a gale-tossed sea, were drowned early today within sight of the lights of their own homes. Only one member of the crew survived.

The 35-foot lifeboat put out Monday night in answer to a report that a vessel was in trouble off the Inchcape Rock.

That rock, the graveyard of many ships, was the subject of a poem by Robert Southey.

The lifeboat failed to find a trace of the vessel it was sent out to help.

Friends and relatives gathered along the harbor wall as the returning lifeboat approached the breakwater. They watched in horror as a giant wave caught it.

Shouts from the crew reached them as the boat was tossed onto rocks only 50 yards from shore. Then nothing could be heard but the roaring of the sea and the howling of the gale.

A rocket line fired from shore tangled around the body of the only survivor, Archibald Smith. With its help he pulled himself to safety and was rushed to hospital.

Later, seafarers from this little port found the body of the coxswain, David Bruce, in the wreckage of the lifeboat. He had lashed himself to the helm. Three bodies were recovered from the sea and a search still is under way for the others.

A spokesman for a finance company said money borrowed at the old rate is loaned out on paper that will not be all paid back for 24 or 30 months. He did not know whether the increase would be reflected in the cost to the consumer of financing of new purchases.

Victoria hockey fans were heartened today by a report from Edmonton that Doug Anderson will be joining the Cougars of the WHL for the game against Flyers tonight.

The popular centre forward saw duty with Cougars last season before being transferred to Buffalo Bisons of the AHL this year.

EFFECT OF STRIKE

New York's 12 Millions Out of Milk

400,000 Quarts Due To Go to Sewers

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

NEW YORK — Milk supplies for 12,000,000 persons dwindled rapidly today in a strike of truck drivers and plant workers while health authorities planned to dump 400,000 quarts into sewers for lack of processing.

Anxious parents carried children to milk plants where limited remaining supplies were being doled out.

Charles J. Blanford, federal state milk marketing administrator, said 400,000 quarts of raw, unpasteurized milk held in tank trucks will be dumped in sewers Wednesday if something (presumably a settlement of the dispute) doesn't happen by that time.

The striking unions are seeking a $15-a-week wage increase, a 35 instead of 40-hour work week, 11 paid holidays instead of six, improved vacations, pensions and insurance and other benefits. The pre-strike earnings of drivers on a wage and commission basis averaged $135 a week, and plant workers averaged $82 a week.

Indeterminate Sentence for Denis O'Brien

'Dangerous Man' Says Judge

Denis Charles O'Brien, 28, of Victoria, was sentenced to an indeterminate prison term today by County Court Judge J. B. Clearhugh on a charge of being a habitual criminal.

The sentence arose out of the accused's record of drug addiction, theft, and robbery with violence.

In addition he was sentenced to three years plus a $200 fine on a charge of possessing drugs, the sentence to run concurrently with a two-and-a-half year term meted out on a similar charge at the Fall Assizes.

"This is a dangerous man," said His Honor on passing sentence, "and the public should be protected."

O'Brien was arrested Sept. 26 at 2531 Government Street and was found to be in possession of a quantity of hashish.

Lost Baby-Sitter Thought Victim Of Sex Maniac

LA CROSSE, Wis. (UP) — Tension mounted in this Mississippi River city today as police and volunteers pressed a round-the-clock search for baby-sitter Evelyn Hartley, feared to be the victim of a sex maniac.

The attractive 15-year-old high school girl disappeared Saturday night from a La Crosse State College professor's home where she was minding a 20-month-old baby.

There were signs of a bloody struggle in and around teacher Viggo Rasmussen's home. Evelyn's mother looked at splatters of blood near the house and sobbed "I'm afraid my baby is dead."

BCE-Union Parley Thursday Last Hope to Avert Strike

Monday's meeting between union and company heads failed to produce any compromise proposal for settling differences between the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) and the B.C. Electric, it was learned here today.

Negotiators on both sides did agree, however, to having one more meeting in an attempt to avert the threatened strike by 500 men on the lower mainland and 100 on southern Vancouver Island.

It was decided a meeting should be held Thursday. Mainland union members met Monday night in Vancouver to consider their next step. The meeting empowered its negotiating committee to fix a day for strike action if Thursday's meeting

Canadian Servicemen in Korea May Lose Income Tax Concession

CANADIAN SOVEREIGNTY LOST TO UN-KENNEDY

HEPBURN, Sask. (CP)—The Social Credit Party favors a United Nations only provided it is composed of self-governing nations which would not lose their autonomy in joining it. Orvis Kennedy, national Social Credit organizer and Commons member for Edmonton East, said Monday night.

He spoke to a campaign rally here, attended by some 200 persons, in support of Martin Kelin, Social Credit candidate in Wednesday's Rosthern provincial election.

Canada had given away three basic rights after the last war—"the right to control men, the right to control money and the right to control goods."

Canada no longer had the right to declare war on its own behalf. It had delegated that right to the United Nations. The Canadian Parliament had never asked for an expression of the will of Canadian people when the war in Korea was declared, he added.

"We have given away our sovereignty since the war," he declared.

Dulles Wants Five-Power Trieste Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles said today there could well be a five-power conference to settle the future of Trieste before the United States and Britain withdraw their occupation troops.

The sooner such a conference is held the better it will be for Western defenses against communism in south Europe, Dulles told a press conference.

The secretary said it would take considerable time for the 7,000 British and United States troops to be pulled out of Zone A. American and British diplomats are discussing in London technical problems involved in the withdrawal, he added.

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia's deputy foreign minister, Ales Bebler, says his government has reason to believe an international conference can be held on the future of disputed Trieste.

The statement, made Monday night in an interview with the official news agency Tanjug, was the first hint that Yugoslavia might agree to talks regarding the British-American announcement Oct. 8 that zone A of the disputed territory would be turned over to Italy.

the new Canadian-Pacific Airlines and Trans-Canada Air Lines services marked a "great day for Canada."

Jules Leger, new Canadian consul to Mexico, echoed Mr. Martin in expressing pleasure that the two air line companies offer this means of knitting together the interests of Canada and Mexico.

Both CPA's first scheduled flight on the Vancouver-Mexico City-Peru service, and the pre-inaugural flight of TCA, Montreal-Mexico City, arrived here over the week-end.

Sixteen western Canadian press and radio representatives traveled on the CPA flight; 20 from Eastern Canada on the TCA plane.

Each group received an impressive, colorful welcome. Representatives of the army, government, and tourists officials met the planes, and visitors were serenaded by a sombrero-clad Mexican band.

The regular Sunday bull fight, to which visitors had been invited, was postponed, and instead the press parties were entertained at one of the city's most beautiful race tracks, Hipodromo de las Americas.

Monday the Canadian visitors attended a wreath-laying ceremony at the Monument of Independence, and were entertained at lunch by Mexican newspapermen.

Coal Mine Shutdown Hits Nova Scotia Town

WESTVILLE, N.S. (BUP)—Two shafts of the Intercolonial Coal Co. here will be closed Thursday after 100 years of continuous operation.

A delegation from the Nova Scotia government failed last week-end to persuade Montreal operators to keep the mine running. As a result, 380 persons, one out of every 11 in Westville, will be out of work.

FORD BACKS FREER TRADE

NEW YORK (UP)—Henry Ford II called on American industry Monday night to back a reduction in U.S. tariffs to give business leadership "a clean bill of health in the eyes of the world."

The Ford Motor Co. president told a committee for a national trade policy "the whole fabric of free world co-operation" could be destroyed if the U.S. doesn't halt its drift toward a policy of economic isolation.

"We can no longer afford to play penny-ante poker with destiny," he said. "We are the greatest creditor nation of all time and other nations must sell to us if they are to discharge their debts."

Ford said there is "tremendous" public sentiment in favor of a more liberal trade policy. Business would benefit greatly, he said, if it would "permit us to import things at lower cost and ultimately to sell more and more of our goods abroad."

He suggested a form of direct government subsidy to help those industries hardest hit by the flow of low-cost goods into this country.

Guiana- Leaders Still in Custody

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—The London-appointed governor of this troubled British colony today announced the indefinite detention of five leaders of the leftist People's Progressive Party.

An official statement said their activities constituted a threat to public safety and order.

The surprise action was taken under the emergency powers granted Governor Sir Alfred Savage early this month.

The Crow and the Pitcher

A THIRSTY CROW found a Pitcher with some water in it, but so little was there that, try as she might, she could not reach it with her beak, and it seemed as though she would die of thirst within sight of the remedy. At last she hit upon a clever plan. She began dropping pebbles into the Pitcher, and with each pebble the water rose a little higher until at last it reached the brim, and the knowing bird was enabled to quench her thirst.

LIGHTS ON, OFF, CHANGED, D.O.T. REPORTS TO MARINERS

Condition of several aids to navigation on the B.C. coast is reported in a notice to mariners issued today by the Department of Transport.

Tahsis Canal light is not burning. Nawhitt Point and Cape Scott lights have been placed in operation.

The light on Sapperton Bar Dyke and the light on Port Mann lower training dyke have been changed from flashing white to flashing green.

The fog alarm recently established on Lookout Island, Kyuquot Sound, is not to be relied upon until mechanical difficulties have been repaired.

1,000 Interior WIU Lumber Workers Take Strike Vote

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lumbering operations in the B.C. Southern Interior, already curtailed by a strike of the International Woodworkers of America, may force a still tighter shutdown.

A government-supervised ballot of 1,000 members of the Woodworkers' Industrial Union will be taken this week by labor relations board officer George Carmichael.

The WIU was formed by one-time officers of the IWA when the latter union purged its ranks of Communists several years ago. Its principal strength is in the Southern Interior where its wage demands roughly parallel those of the IWA.

A conciliation board recommendation for a three-cent-an-hour wage increase was rejected by the IWA in the Southern Interior and its 2,000 members are now on strike, backing up their demands for an 18-cent-an-hour boost.

ALSO ON STRIKE

IWA members in the Northern Interior also are on strike. They voted to leave their jobs after operators had rejected a conciliation-board recommendation for a six-cent-an-hour increase, accepted by the union.

Former Victoria Dramatists Die Days Apart in London

BY AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Two men well-known to Victoria patrons of the theatre have died suddenly in England.

Charles Myddleton-Evans, who came to Victoria in 1930 as business manager for the Gordon MacLeod Players, and who has been living in England for the past four years, was recently found dead of a heart attack in a country lane near London.

Gordon MacLeod, travelling to London for the funeral of his former manager, collapsed and died.

Both Mr. Myddleton-Evans and Mr. MacLeod were well-liked by Victoria and remembered best for their work in the Toronto-financed MacLeod Players.

The company played a 17-week repertory engagement at the Royal Theatre from January to May of 1930.

Among the plays they produced were: "The Ghost Train," "Hay Fever," "The Ringer" and "The Man From Toronto."

James MacGrath, director for the company, remained in Victoria and is still a resident here.

Greater Victoria's 1954 school-building program which calls for expenditure of $3,410,700 did not meet with willing approval at Esquimalt council Monday night.

Council was unanimous in a resolution asking that Esquimalt's representative and school board chairman, Richard Reeve, meet with council to explain the estimates more fully.

Nanaimo Jury Finds Homeniuk Not Guilty

NANAIMO (CP)—A size court jury Monday night, after deliberating three hours and 33 minutes, returned a verdict of not guilty in the manslaughter charge against Frank Homeniuk of Duncan.

He had been charged following the death of Eric Andrew Lindstrom in Duncan on May 10. Jurors were out 39 minutes and returned for further instruction.

Bapco Plans Warehouse In Esquimalt

A new warehouse may be built in Esquimalt if proposals made to the municipal council meet with favor. It was learned at a regular council meeting Monday night.

Council received a letter from the British America Paint Company Ltd. which offered $4,000 for a municipally-owned lot at Fairview and Devonshire. The company wants the property as a site for a modern raw material stores building.

The firm stipulated that the land would only be purchased if its present zoning as residential could be altered to industrial and if the municipality would permit construction of a railway spur line to the site.

Municipal engineer John Graeme informed council that he approved the plan in principle.

"We should do everything in our power to encourage this nice warehouse," said Reeve A. C. Wurtele. "The lot in question, although zoned as residential, is adjoining industrial property." He added that he had assurance that the stored commodities would present no fire hazard.

Council tabled the request for further consideration.

A daily service between Vancouver and Sidney, with a call each day at one Gulf Island port, will be operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway's B.C. Coast Service next summer, a company statement revealed.

The statement also suggested Gulf Island residents should explore the possibility of an inter-island service connecting with one of the through routes from Vancouver Island. The company feels the summer service suggested for 1954 would give the Islanders sufficient time to look into this possibility.

(A survey of inter-island ferry routes has been commissioned by Black Ball Lines, on behalf of the Islanders. Col. George Paulin, Victoria manager, said today the survey would be undertaken within the next two weeks, with the objective of setting up the most suitable routes and terminals to link the islands together.)

The CPR announced that beginning June 1, St. Princess Elaine will stop at Galiano Island three days each week; and Port Washington and Mayne Island, two days each week.

In addition, Princess Norah will make one round trip each Wednesday from Vancouver to Saturna, Port Washington and Ganges; and Princess of Alberni will continue its present service, leaving Victoria on Wednesdays and making calls at South Pender, Saturna and Hope Bay.

Application for adjournment was made by F. S. Cunliffe, Crown counsel, to permit a commission in California to take evidence from witnesses to alleged conversations with police officers. Hearing will be in Campbell City, Calif. Jurors were excused until December 7.

Earlier, Mr. Justice MacFarlane ordered the trial of Cecil and Edna Sampson, charged with murder of Chu Deb, Chinese at Duncan June 30, 1953, adjourned until December 7 along with other cases pending on the court calendar.

Salvage Crew Hopes Fishpacker Can Be Pulled From Rocks Today

The 60-foot fishpacker Newcastle IV is in a "grim situation" on the rocky shores of the west coast of Vancouver Island, according to officials of Pacific Salvage Company, which is attempting to refloat the packer.

Newcastle IV went ashore in heavy fog Sunday morning, and so far attempts by Salvage Queen to refloat her have been unsuccessful.

"Her position is anything but good," Albert Smith, Victoria manager of Pacific Salvage, said this morning. "However, we are going to make another effort to move her at high water. She has been patched and sealed up, and Salvage Queen has a line on her."

"There is a heavy ground swell, and the packer is taking quite a pounding against the boulders." George Unwin, in charge of salvage operations at the scene, reported by radio-telephone that the ship is lodged about 50 feet from high water mark. Representatives of the owners were also at the scene today to assist in salvage attempts.

WHAT "LIFE-TESTED" MEANS TO YOU... It's the extra test by Marconi engineers which gives you the ultimate in dependability.

Here's how we carefully check and test YOUR television receiver.

First, all components are checked by quality-control, sub-assemblies are carefully inspected and then the completed chassis is measured, checked and re-checked for picture and sound. But we don't stop there.

The extra step, "life-testing", enables our engineers to subject every receiver to tests equivalent to many weeks of normal home use. Because we "life-test", our TV receivers and devote more time and more care to testing and checking, Marconi TV receivers consistently exceed their guaranteed performance.

The new advanced design, quality engineered Marconi TV chassis is precision built to bring you clear, brilliant, high definition pictures with accompanying noise-free FM sound. For your own protection, look for the "life-tested" seal — it appears on the safety glass of every Marconi TV receiver and it's your assurance of top performance and exceptional reliability.

FROM STUDIO TO LIVING ROOM IT'S MARCONI. Many Canadian radio stations have been completely equipped by Marconi. Marconi has supplied much of the studio, mobile and transmitting apparatus used by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's television stations. ## Let Mr. Bennett Explain

PREMIER BENNETT HAS BEEN charged by Mr. Johnson, his predecessor, with misrepresenting the finances of British Columbia. It is a grave charge and should be answered without delay.

Mr. Bennett boasted at the recent convention of the Social Credit party that his Government had reduced the provincial debt by $34,000,000. Mr. Johnson replies that most of the money used to reduce the debt had been laid aside by his Government long before Mr. Bennett came to office. According to Mr. Johnson, therefore, any debt reduction lately effected was the work of the former, not of the present Government.

As Mr. Johnson says, this sort of debt reduction cannot be achieved twice with the same money since the money used to effect it has been spent in retiring Government securities. In Mr. Johnson's opinion the present Government, after using all the money it could lay hands on, is now compelled to raise taxes to finance its existing fiscal program.

If the debt has been reduced by $34,000,000—certainly a gratifying change in a province heavily laden with debt—the question is whether this or the former Government made it possible. But there is another question which Mr. Johnson did not touch, presumably because he has no recent information on it. That question is how much the debt, in fact, has been reduced.

There are now two departments of the provincial debt. The first consists of the bonds, treasury bills and other borrowings which the Government itself has directly contracted. The second includes all the guarantees that the Government has given to the borrowings of municipalities, school boards, and other local authorities.

When the Government guarantees any such borrowings they are no less a charge on its total credit than the direct borrowings. It is true that the interest and principal payments are expected to be made by the local authority but they come out of the same tax-paying public. And if those payments should fail at any time the Government would have to make them good. Any proper reckoning of the provincial debt, therefore, must include these contingent guarantees.

How much money has the Government thus guaranteed? How much more does it intend to guarantee? What, taking all these factors into account, is the real size of the provincial debt today? How much has it really been reduced?

During its recent session the Legislature was given little information about the Government's affairs. The Government, using its majority, closed the House before any serious examination of provincial finances was possible. During the next few weeks Mr. Gunderson, the minister of finance, responsible for those finances, will submit himself to the electors of Victoria. It will be his clear duty, in arguing for his election, to reveal all the facts, remembering that all the money belongs to the people, not to the Government.

A Pacific Coast Guard

PREMIER BENNETT HAS ASSURED Mr. Tony Gargrave, CCF member for Mackenzie, that he will draw to Ottawa's attention the need of a coast guard service on the Pacific.

The assurance serves two valuable purposes. It should remind federal authorities of British Columbia's continuing interest in safeguarding those who work on the water, and it provides an opportunity to review advances already made in that direction.

Three or four years ago the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, supported by the parent Canadian body, so impressed the minister of transport with a plan evolved here that delegates were asked to present it in Ottawa.

The plan took into consideration British Columbia needs, the inadvisability of trying to finance here a coast guard equivalent to that provided by the rich and infinitely more settled seaboard of the United States, and offered a practical alternative. The plan won federal endorsement.

The first step in the scheme called for the integration of all vessels in the government service—department of transport, fisheries, navy, RCAF, RCMP and other branches—into an air-sea search and rescue organization. Each was to be equipped with suitable communication machinery and their locations were to be plotted from headquarters at Jericho Beach.

Was He Picked for the Job?

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 30 years a British soldier has been convicted of cowardice; his sentence, a year in prison and discharged with ignominy. According to the evidence at a court martial he cringed in a Korean trench while his comrades fought a desperate battle with the enemy.

Professional army men will produce emphatic arguments in defense of the sentence. They undoubtedly will point out how many extra lives and battles would be lost if every man could not be counted on to move forward as a unit in a crucial attack.

One point stands out clearly, however. This 26-year-old soldier must have been frozen with fear he could not overcome, a fear that made it impossible for him to do anything else but cringe, powerless to move into action.

The Butt of the Joke

IT WAS NOT TO BE EXPECTED that a rank-and-file membership that would swallow the monetary theories of Social Credit would gag at a small pinch of powder. Health Minister Martin should have remembered this and curbed the Irish wit that prompted him to offer an amendment to his party's convention in Vancouver last week, to the effect that all the water be taken out of government-controlled liquor and the residue sold in the form of snuff powder.

It was demanding too much of critical faculties long dulled, of senses of humor buried deep under the reformer's zeal. The amendment, to Mr. Martin's disgust, was quickly seconded and unanimously passed.

Now it might be thought that fate could add little to such a situation; either to the discomfort of a minister of the Crown who chose to take up the time of a party convention with such a piece of deadpan foolery, or to the bewilderment of a membership which would accept it at face value. But fate could, and fate did.

As Mr. Martin mopped his brow in the corridor a few minutes later and tried to explain to astonished reporters what had happened, he did not notice the gentleman standing at his elbow. It was a joke, a joke, the minister reiterated, "but some fool seconded it and it was passed." Only then did he find that the member at his side was the seconder.

The pixies who arrange such things doubled up, slapped their thighs, and turned to other matters. And Social Credit marched on to further glories.

The Smell of Pickles

IN the whole vast and teeming world of smell the supreme masterpiece of the perfumer's art now arises in the kitchens of Canada. And like all masterpieces it is created unconsciously by the artist who, if she is worth her salt, can never explain her methods. I use the feminine gender because this masterpiece can never be created by man. It is the work and the glory of womankind. It is the art of pickles.

It is an ancient art, doubtless going back a million years into the caves where some curious combination of berries and roots was used to flavor the tough meat of dinosaurs. But it has a special place in the short life-span of this country.

THE whiff of pickles now permeating the Canadian home instantly evokes our deepest racial memories. Lives there a Canadian with soul so dead that he cannot remember his grandmother, in some massive kitchen long ago, chopping with worn but skillful hands, the tomatoes, onions, peppers, cucumbers and other ingredients of this magic brew? And has the native culture of the nation sunk so low that the modern generation of children is deprived of that ripe and pungent scent, that flavor which all the cunning machines of modern industry can never hope to imitate?

PICKLES and pickle makers, like all things of importance, are highly sensitive to environment. The true artist falters in unfamiliar surroundings and the proper surroundings for pickle making were always an old-fashioned kitchen, without electrical choppers and mixers, surgical tables, thermometers and the other equipment which turns the modern kitchen into an operating theatre.

The great age of the Canadian pickle possessed only a wooden chopping bowl, a hand pump on the sink, a wood stove and a great iron pot bubbling with steam and mystery. Still, the contemporary housewife, for all her devotion to gadgets, for all her curious and unnatural prejudice against unnecessary labor, somehow has managed to remember her mother's secret, to uphold the old tradition against the march of science and, sometimes, even to produce a reasonably good facsimile of the genuine Canadian pickle.

ONE doubts, however, that, brooding beside her electric stove, her mind probably distracted by a radio, the housewife quite appreciates her place in history. Does she ever pause to remember that pickles, or their ingredients, were really the beginning of Canada, just as Canada surely will end, will hardly be worth maintaining, when there are no more homemade pickles?

In this solemn moment of the year, when the boiling juices on the stove must turn into a masterpiece or a failure, let the housewife ponder, the responsibilities inherited from fourteen Canadian generations since Champlain, with 27, companions, faced that first winter on the rock of Quebec.

HE had no pickles and little meat to use them on for that matter—only eels and forest roots. By spring, when the sail of a French ship moved up the St. Lawrence, eight men were alive, but they had founded Canada and bequeathed us everything we own.

What, the housewife may ask, as she pores over some ancient book of recipes, has Champlain to do with pickles? Madam, he had everything to do with pickles, even if they were beyond his reach.

For what was he doing in this land, what brought Cartier here before him, and Hudson and La Salle and Radisson and all the others who penetrated the unmapped mystery of an unknown continent? They were looking for a passage to Asia. And why Asia? To get its spices of course.

THEY had crossed the Atlantic in their cockle shells, they had nosed into every bay and river of the American coast, they had paddled in their canoes a thousand miles into the wilderness, many of them had lost their scalps to the Indians or become half Indian themselves in search of spices, the ingredients of pickles.

Now, in strict regard for history, I will admit that these men had other purposes as well, they wanted furs (preferably long worn by Indians to make them sleek and oily) and some of them, like Champlain, had glimpsed the bare outlines of a new world. Nevertheless, spices loomed large in their calculations and spices, though useful for other purposes, reach their climax of taste, smell and usefulness in pickles. So I advance it as a theory for the investigation of historians that Canada was really built on pickles.

LET the housewife who no longer lives on eels and roots, who has better tools than pump and iron kettle, remember from what heroic origins she has sprung, what toil, danger and unrecorded war in the wilderness lie behind her when she undertakes at this season to reproduce the art of her grandmother and countless earlier women, now nameless and gone.

No man, I suspect, has ever made a pickle worthy of the name. He might as well try to bear children. But such is the stubborn injustice of life that the final verdict on pickles is always rendered by a male jury. The man sits by and watches the gestation of the pickle pot, powerless to help, he inhales the disturbing intimations of its perfumed steam and, having contributed nothing, he sits in final judgment.

IN charity men may lie, like good husbands, and approve a botched job but in their palates and in their hearts they know at once, by three hundred years of inherited instinct, whether a jar of pickles is worthy of Canada. Therefore, madam, look to your pickle pot, examine the tattered recipe book with care, remember the cunning of your grandmother's worn pioneer hands and prove by the sovereign pickle test that you are worthy of a Canadian husband.

Triumph at Carnegie Hall

"Canadian music came of age in the U.S. one night last week before a glittering audience in Manhattan's Carnegie Hall. The occasion: the first major U.S. concert of Canadian music. To organize the program, Conductor Leopold Stokowski and the sponsors, Broadcast Music Inc. and BMI Canada Ltd., had culled the best in Canadian music. (Time, Oct. 12) for this performance by Stokowski's orchestra. Seldom has a New York concert received more uniformly glowing notices.

"For the concert, Carnegie Hall was appropriately adorned with Canadian flags. From Montreal and Toronto in chartered planes came several hundred Canadians. Top-hatted delegations from the United Nations lent a diplomatic-corporate tone. Among the enthusiastic listeners: Tory Leader George Drew and Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei Vishinsky.

"But the music itself made the evening's real news. Singled out for special acclaim was Colin McPhee's Tabuh Tabuhan, a work derived from Balinese gamelan sounds. Said the New York Herald Tribune's Composer-Critic Virgil Thomson: '(It is) a delight for bright sounds, lively rhythms, and sweet tunes... completely brilliant, busy, lovely and fun.' Of Francois Morel's Gregorian-like Antiphonie: 'Wonderously mysterious and ever so suavely orchestrated... I should have liked to hear it right over again.'

"Alexander Brodt's Violin Concerto drew similar praise. Said the New York Times' Olin Downes: 'Original, brilliant, technically resourceful... One wonders here if there is not something really new under the sun in a composer's approach to the modern concert form.' Other concert standouts: the Coronation Suite by Healey Willan, dean of Canadian composers, and gifted Toronto soprano Lois Marshall's singing of two songs to poems by John Donne, composed by Godfrey Ridout (in two days, especially for this concert). Said Critic Thomson: '(Her) clear, high soprano voice and lovely musicianship are ever a delight.'

One is reminded of the Pharisee who stood on the corner crying: 'I thank God I am not as other men are.' In Mr. Manning's eyes other things wrong in Britain are that 'the British lack a sense of aggressive attitude and responsibility' and 'are unrealistic about problems that require action.' ### MARKED for READING

From Mr. Tom Clark's letter in your paper of October 17, it is obvious that this gentleman is either very uninformed or has, himself, overlooked a great many things.

Firstly, there is, I am sure, nothing which would please Mr. Randolph Harding more, regarding the B.C. Hospital Insurance, than that those in the low-income groups be exempted from premium payments. This was urged by all CCF members during the recent Legislature.

Secondly, Mr. Clark states that 'those who do not pay don't get any service and therefore they do not cost the government any money.' Mr. Clark overlooks the large number of people who are not covered by hospital insurance, and go to hospital, and are unable, or unwilling to try, to pay their bills. These unpaid accounts cause the cost of hospitalization to rise and thus increase the costs to the B.C.H.I.S. and in turn the rate of premium they must charge.

Mr. Clark's supposed concern for the poor elderly folk, and at the same time his attitude towards Mr. Harding, is so contradictory that it would be comical were it not so tragic. If Mr. Clark understood Canadian political history he would know that it was the CCF who secured old-age pensions for Canada, and it is the CCF who have fought continually and are still fighting for the well-being of our senior citizens.

SPITE TAX?

The 10 per cent tax on liquor devised by the Bennett government will largely nullify the desired effects of the new liquor act. It appears to have been motivated from spite, for such a tax was not recommended by the Stevens Report.

If the government had levied the tax for the purpose of collecting money towards an Alcoholic Research Foundation to be established at UBC and a Detention Rehabilitation Centre to be established as recommended by the Stevens Report (Page 6) they doubtless would have received the commendation of press and citizens alike.

TOO YOUNG TO DRINK

The Times of Thursday, October 15, contained an amazing article entitled "Minors May Vote On Liquor Law," the third paragraph of which read: "This means the young voters will be allowed to sign petitions protesting establishment of new liquor outlets."

Does this mean that the same young voters will not be allowed to sign petitions advocating establishment of new liquor outlets? If such is the case then it would seem that our so-called democratic system is certainly on the wane. In view of the fact that minors under 21 years of age are prohibited from drinking in public houses or cocktail lounges, I, personally, see no good reason why they should have any say when local options are called for.

The Calgary Herald quotes Premier Manning as saying after his visit to England "The trouble with Britain is that its people haven't got a high-class sense of spiritual values like the people of Alberta."

NOTHING ACCOMPLISHED

Nothing has been accomplished for the benefit of the people by the election of a Social Credit government. Extra taxes forced on the workers are detrimental to their welfare. The hospital insurance payment of $1 per day is bad policy. The longer a person is kept in hospital the more he pays. The above appears to the writer as an un-Christian arrangement as the unfortunate sick are forced to pay the extra.

MERLIN CHRONICLES

Mr. Monte Roberts' reference to King Arthur recalls my old suspicion that the lost Merlin Chronicles may be hidden somewhere in Rome.

King Arthur thumbed his nose at the departing Romans, and invented and set up the new institution of chivalry, as a cure for the beastly influence left behind by the decadent and depraved Roman soldiery.

So the thousands of years old Irish Celtic mythology, with its miraculous "Excalibur" etc., was tacked on to this great English king, to confuse his true history in future ages.

TRAFFIC SUGGESTIONS

I would like to make a suggestion to the traffic authorities in Victoria. It may help to destroy the "devil-may-care" but - I don't - unless there's a "cop-about" attitude of so many drivers on our roads.

I suggest that it be advertised that a large number of patrol cars are at work daily in the city; that they carry no identification; that the drivers be in plain clothes; that their job is to tail cars in the city area to watch for careless driving, etc.

This, I think, could have the right psychological effect on every motorist. The thought that somebody may be watching his progress through town (for he will never be sure that he's not being followed) is bound to make him a careful and conscientious driver. Perhaps one may even hope that such driving will become a habit, and the need for patrols will disappear.

Pedestrians also need some lessons and heavy fines for jaywalking should be imposed. Any person stepping onto a busy intersection can stop quicker than a moving vehicle.

It is indeed sad that people should have to be compelled to look after their own safety.

WITH NO THOUGHT OF PAY

It was with great pleasure I read Mr. Art Stott's story of the very kind, quiet doctor who prescribed a washing machine instead of a bill for the tired overworked wife and mother. The sweetest bit of medicine I've come across," says Mr. Stott.

Well, I'm sure many would find no difficulty in honoring their physician but we must spare their blushes.

But what a let-down there was in your side by side "Prairie Round-up." "Manitoba doctors make second appeal for nurses to aid polio fight." Shades of Florence Nightingale! What are we coming to? An eight-hour day with higher pay and special hours for students.

My thoughts go back to a Sheffield, English fever hospital when a few smallpox patients were brought in. Volunteers were asked for from the staff and an overwhelming response was given. Kind hearts there were aplenty in those days, without a thought of pay.

Don'ts for the Duke

RECENT denunciation, at the Sacred convention, of sports on Sundays reminds us again that while Sunday may be designated a day of rest the amount of labor and time spent in squabbling and law-making on the subject has been prodigious. In Canada, the Lord's Day Alliance has for years been fighting the secular encroachment of the Sabbath, while Britons have been badgering, bullying, spying, gaoing and throwing each other into the stocks over the centuries in order to keep the Lord's day in proper Christian fashion.

Nancy

And now the controversy again has been revived in Britain, all because the Duke of Edinburgh likes to play polo on Sundays. Scottish ministers started it some months ago when they decreed his addition to Sabbath day sport. Early this month, 13,000 Welsh Presbyterians followed up the Scottish reproof by voicing, through the medium of the South Pembroke Presbytery, their "deep regret at his participation in sporting events on the Lord's day, coupled with 'deep concern at the spiritual consequences in our national life which may result from participation in Sunday sport by one who is so prominent in our nation'."

ANGELIC ATTITUDE

An Anglican clergyman, rector of the village of Longford, also took part in the royal knucklerapping, by asking his parishioners to pray that the Duke might see the inadvisability of his Sunday polo-playing, and suggesting that "a fatherly word" from the Archbishop of Canterbury might do some good.

But unless the heads of the Church of England have changed their views in the meantime, I don't think they will be too hard on the royal culprit. For I recall the Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett, telling the York Diocesan Conference a few years ago that "if a Christian worships and rests on Sunday he can use the rest of the day for whatever games and recreations his conscience allows, provided he causes no unnecessary work for others."

HARDWORKING CONSORT

It seems to me that this is a tolerant and reasonable attitude. Anyone who reads the newspapers is aware that the Duke of Edinburgh shares with the Queen and her family a meticulous attention to religious duties that might well be emulated by others. It should also be remembered that the Duke is on anything but a 40-hour week—as far as his many royal, secular duties are concerned. The demands made of him are enormous, even to a man of his youthful spirit and vitality, making it imperative for his own health and well-being—and that of his family and country—that he avail himself of every opportunity for healthy recreation and exercise.

And I think the majority of Britons would not wish to curtail his opportunities to do so. After all, prohibition and condemnation of private Sunday recreation and sport will not attain the desired objective of getting people to church. As the Archbishop of York so sagely said, on the occasion to which I have already alluded: "Worship will not be of real benefit to the person who only goes to church because there is nothing else to do."

The urge must come from something deeper than that.

FROM TOKYO

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Recovery and Armament

IF YOU LOOK at it the right way, this country is just one huge joke on the United States. Americans wrote a Japanese Constitution forbidding national armaments in any form. But now they are pleading with the Japanese to re-arm, and the Japs are coyly quoting America's own constitutional prohibitions right back at them. By the same token, who can forget all the self-righteous American talk about "Zaibatsu," and the drama of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's program for breaking up bad big business into good little businesses?

Joseph

Yet now the Zaibatsu combinations—yes, even the Mitsui and the Mitsubishi—are forming again while the American embassy secretly smiles. And if Japan's grave problems are to be solved at all, the people who must do the job at present are the conservative politicians and their big business backers.

The primary, the most pressing Japanese problem is simply to live. Most of Japan's former resources of industrial raw materials were lost in the war. Her old export industries, silk and cotton-textiles, have been mortally hit by the invention of nylon and the growth of cotton-textile production in countries that used to be Japanese markets.

The engineering and specialty manufacturing industries that should now provide Japanese exports are actually high-cost producers, because their machinery is outmoded, and because coal and iron must be imported at great cost.

For these reasons, Japan at present must buy abroad a minimum of $600,000,000 worth of goods more each year than Japan is able to sell abroad. American spending has been the artificial dollar injection which has prevented Japanese bankruptcy and prostration. But American spending for the Korean War has also touched off an inflationary spree in Japan which has upped the import requirements this year to closer to $1,000,000,000.

Contrary to the general impression, American dollar outlays in Japan will taper off rather slowly. As long as U.S. divisions are here, the Japanese will always get a good many hundreds of millions a year from this rather disagreeable but dependable tourist industry. Yet both the politicians and the businessmen see that the time has come to prepare Japan to stand on her own feet.

The curious fact really is that this feat should be possible. But miraculously enough, these islands actually produce 80 per cent of the food for their population of 86,300,000 people.

Despite the inflation and an improved standard of living, Japanese labor costs are still so low that Japanese industry can compete in the world markets if the industrial plant is rationalized and modernized, and special steps are taken to reduce raw material costs by a few points. Large domestic food production, competitive exports and sharply restricted luxury imports constitute a Japanese survival program.

In the existing circumstances, there is one main requirement for the success of such a program. This is the establishment of a strong Japanese government, willing to take the necessary drastic measures of belt-tightening, controlled and planned investment, and so on. At least a temporary dose of the economic methods of the good Doctor Schacht is the prescription, and a weak government cannot attempt this sort of thing.

The second dubious fact is that the Japanese business community on the whole seems to be willing and eager to swallow this far from pleasant dose as rapidly as possible. The leaders of business, like Ichii, brilliant Gov. Ichimada of the Bank of Japan are the chief advocates of the kind of planned economic measures that would send any American businessman into a free enterprise apoplectic fit. From the businessmen, comes the pressure on the reluctant conservative politicians, who would like to go on taking it easy.

Because of this pressure, there are now signs that the three Japanese right wing parties will eventually unite, perhaps under the leadership of Prime Minister Yoshida, perhaps with Yoshida promoted to become a one-man genro, and with a new leader bearing the brunt of responsibility.

Conservative coalition will provide strong government. Strong government will provide the means for tackling the great Japanese problem of simple physical survival. After that—and only after that—may come serious Japanese re-armament.

Two Real Film Veterans

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If newcomer Tony Curtis was sweating through his movie scene, there was good reason. He was playing with two actors who had a mere 88 years of film experience between them.

Eager young

Tony was holding his own. But he couldn't hope to beat out a couple of scene stealers like Paul Kelly and Sidney Blackmer. These boys have been around.

"I think I go back farther than anyone around here," said Blackmer confidently. "I was with Pearl White in 'The Perils of Pauline'."

"Hold on," Kelly corrected. "Can you go back as far as 1907? I do."

"That beats me," Blackmer shrugged. Kelly explained that he lived near the old Vitaphone studio in New York when he was a boy. He was doing stage roles at the time, and he would drop into the studio to ask about jobs. He became "The Vitaphone Boy" and starred in the first one- and two-reelers ever made.

Blackmer broke into pictures even more accidentally.

"In 1911, I was up in New York on a vacation from studying law at the University of North Carolina," he said. "I happened to be watching them make some movies in Union Square when I was picked out of the crowd."

"I was told to report the next day in a dress suit. I didn't have one, so I hocked a prep school graduation present. I was there and ready for work the next day."

The two men went on to do hundreds of movies. Kelly figures he has appeared in more than 500. Both have combined stage and screen work throughout their careers. Strangely enough, although they were stars as leading men, they found their greatest success in later life.

Kelly went back to Broadway after the last war and was a hit in "Command Decision." He repeated a couple of years ago with "The Country Girl." Blackmer walked off with nearly all the acting awards when he played "Come Back, Little Sheba" with Shirley Booth in New York and on the road.

Their stage hits brought them new prosperity in films. "My best period," reported Kelly, "was after 'Command Decision.' I came back to Hollywood and made more for doing less than I ever have in my life."

Although they have known each other since 1920, they have never appeared together until now.

ISLAND DIGEST

PORT ALBERT—Inquest into the death of James Sandberg, 33, in a motorcycle-truck collision in Albert, Friday, will be held October 30. A coroner's jury was sworn Saturday and the inquest was then adjourned to the later date.

NANAIMO (BUP)—Local ratepayers will have a $1,922,000 by-law put before them at the next civic elections to cover extraordinary expenses of district No. 68 school board.

The city council approved the by-law at a meeting Monday night. Of the total $1,222,500 was incurred in the building of new schools in the district.

NANAIMO—R. J. M. Stewart, president of Nanaimo Free Press, was awarded a 40-year gold button Saturday at a meeting of Local 337, International Typographical Union. James Davidson, Victoria, I.T.U. international representative, made the presentation.

DUNCAN—Chamber of Commerce has heard suggestion of possible legal action by farmers if the B.C. Milk Board persists in its plans to establish a rigid Vancouver Island quota, while allowing Fraser Valley producers a 20 per cent island quota.

The chamber will inform B.C. ministers of agriculture and trade and industry that it considers the new regulation will cause a serious economic situation here.

NANAIMO—Newly-appointed chairman of the Board of Fisheries Research, Dr. J. L. Kask, is scheduled to visit the Pacific Biological Station at Departure Bay this week.

Dr. Kask will make the visit as part of a nation-wide inspection of the board's establishment. The Nanaimo station, directed by Dr. J. L. Hart, employs a full-time staff of close to 100, and carries out investigations covering all fields of commercial fishing.

DUNCAN—Duncan Kinsmen will entertain more than 400 children on Saturday at their annual Halloween party at the Kin children's playground. The program will include a bonfire, fireworks, movies, and gifts of candy and fruit for each child.

NANAIMO—Ald. Robert Fawcett suggested to city council Monday night that the Duke of Edinburgh be invited to visit the Harnae pulp mill, largest of its kind in Canada, while in western Canada to open the British Empire Games in Vancouver.

COURTENAY—Native Sons 31st annual pioneers' reunion will be held here Friday, with an expected 200 old-timers of the district in attendance.

TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY

our forces in direct support of the decisive battle in Northern France. As for a descent in the Bay of Biscay, he agreed that Bordeaux was closer to the United States than Marseilles, but maintained that the latter could be captured more quickly by forces already in the Mediterranean, and would furnish a direct route northwards to join in the battle for the Ruhr. He therefore urged that Anvil should be undertaken, at the expense of course of our armies in Italy, since "in my view the resources of Great Britain and the United States will not permit us to maintain two major theatres in the European war, with decisive missions."

We were all agreed of course that Overlord took priority; the point was how the armies in the secondary theatre, Italy, could best help to overthrow Germany. The American Chiefs of Staff strongly supported Eisenhower. They commended what they called the "commitment of Mediterranean resources to large-scale operations in Northern Italy and into the Balkans." Our own Chiefs of Staff took the opposite view. On June 26 they declared that the Allied forces in the Mediterranean could best help Overlord by destroying the Germans who faced them. With much prescience they remarked: "We think that the mounting of Anvil on a scale likely to achieve success would hamstring General Alexander's remaining forces to such an extent that any further activity would be limited to something very modest."

This direct conflict of opinions, honestly held and warmly argued by either side, could only be settled, if at all, between the President and myself, and an interchange of telegrams now took place.

"The deadlock," I said on June 28, "between our Chiefs of Staff raises most serious issues. Our first wish is to help General Eisenhower in the most speedy and effective manner. But we do not think this necessarily involves the complete ruin of all our great affairs in the Mediterranean, and we take it hard that this should be demanded of us."

President's View

The President's reply was prompt and adverse. He was resolved to carry out what he called "the grand strategy" of Teheran, namely, exploiting Overlord to the full, "victorious advances in Italy," and an early assault on Southern France. Political objects might be important, but military operations to achieve them must be subordinated to striking at the heart of Germany by a campaign in Europe.

Mr. Roosevelt contended that a landing in the Bay of Biscay would be a waste of shipping. If Eisenhower wanted more troops they were ready in the United States and he had only to ask for them. But it was his objections to a descent on the Istrian peninsula and a thrust against Vienna through the Ljubljana Gap that revealed both the rigidity of the American military plans and his own suspicion of what he called a campaign "in the Balkans."

"I cannot agree," he wrote, "to the employment of United States troops against Istria and into the Balkans, nor can I see the French agreeing to such use of French troops."

For purely political reasons over here, I should never survive even a slight setback in Overlord if it were known that fairly large forces had been diverted to the Balkans.

No one involved in these discussions had ever thought of moving armies into the Balkans; but Istria and Trieste were strategic and political positions, which, as he saw very clearly, might excite profound and widespread reactions, especially after the Russian advances.

On July 2 the President declared that he and his Chiefs of Staff were still convinced that Anvil should be launched at the earliest possible date, and he asked us to direct General Wilson accordingly.

'Dragoon' Revived

By early August, however, a marked change had come over the battlefield in Normandy and great developments impended. On August 4 I reopened with the President the question of switching Dragoon to the west.

I visited Eisenhower at his headquarters near Portsmouth and unfolded to him my last hope of stopping the Dragoon operation. After an agreeable luncheon we had a long and serious conversation. Eisenhower had with him Bedell Smith and Admiral Ramsay. Briefly, what I proposed was to continue loading the Dragoon expedition, but when the troops were in the ships to send them through the Straits of Gibraltar and enter France at Bordeaux. Admiral Ramsay argued against any change of plan. Bedell

The Invasion Area

This map shows the situation described in Sir Winston's accompanying report. The invasion of Normandy (shaded area), was in progress. Lord Alexander's armies were heading north into the Italian boot. Considerable discussion centred around operations ANVIL (later changed to DRAGOON), with alternatives including attack in the South of France or via the Bay of Biscay (arrows) or, again, via the Adriatic.

Smith, on the contrary, declared himself strongly in favor of this sudden deflection of the attack, which would have all the surprise that sea-power can bestow. Eisenhower in no way resented the views of his Chief of Staff. He always encouraged free expression of opinion in council at the summit, though of course whatever was settled would receive every loyalty in execution.

However, I was quite unable to move him, and next day I received the President's reply.

President Roosevelt to Prime Minister

August 8, 1944.

I have consulted by telegraph with my Chiefs of Staff, and am unable to agree that the resources allocated to Dragoon should be considered available for a move into France via ports on the coast of Brittany.

There was no more to be done about it. It is worth noting that we had now passed the day in July when for the first time in the war the movement of the great American armies into Europe and their growth in the Far East made their numbers in action for the first time greater than our own. Influence on Allied operations is usually increased by large reinforcements. It must also be remembered that had the British views on this strategic issue been accepted, the tactical preparations might well have caused some delay, which again would have reacted on the general argument.

Prime Minister to President Roosevelt

August 8, 1944.

I pray God that you may be right. We shall of course, do everything in our power to help you achieve success.

Trouble With Reds

The advance of the Soviet armies into Central and Eastern Europe in the summer of 1944 made it urgent to come to a political arrangement with the Russians about those regions. Post-war Europe seemed to be taking shape. Difficulties in Italy had already begun owing to Russian intrigues. We were striving to reach a balanced result in Yugoslav affairs by direct negotiation with Tito. But no progress had as yet been made with Moscow about Poland, Hungary, Roumania, and Bulgaria. The whole subject had been surveyed at the meeting of the Imperial Conference in London in May, and I had then minuted to the Foreign Secretary:

"... Broadly speaking the issue is: are we going to acquiesce in the Communisation of the Balkans and perhaps of Italy? ... I am of opinion on the whole that we ought to come to a definite conclusion about it, and that if our conclusion is that we resist the Communist infusion and invasion we should put it to them pretty plainly at the best moment that military events permit. We should, of course, have to consult the United States first."

On May 18 the Soviet Ambassador in London called at the Foreign Office to discuss a general suggestion which Mr. Eden had made that the USSR should temporarily regard Roumanian affairs as mainly their concern under war conditions while leaving Greece to us. The Russians were prepared to accept this, but wished to know if we had consulted the United States. If so they accordingly sent a personal telegram to Mr. Roosevelt.

Prime Minister to President Roosevelt

May 31, 1944.

I hope you may feel able to give this proposal your blessing. We do not of course wish to carve up the Balkans into spheres of influence, and in agreeing to the arrangement we should make it clear that it applied only to war conditions and did not affect the rights and responsibilities which each of the three Great Powers will have to exercise at the peace settlement and afterwards in regard to the whole of Europe. The first reactions of the State Department were cool. Mr. Hull was nervous of any suggestion that "might appear to savour of the creation or acceptance of the idea of spheres of influence."

The President, however, was not happy about the way we had acted, and I received a pained message saying "we were disturbed that your people took this matter up with us only after it had been put up to the Russians." On June 23 accordingly I outlined to the President, in reply to his rebuke, the situation as I saw it from London.

June 24, 1944.

... I cannot admit that I have done anything wrong in this matter. It would not be possible for three people in different parts of the world to work together effectively if none of them may make any suggestion to either of the others without simultaneously keeping the third informed. A recent example of this is the message you have sent quite properly to Uncle Joe about your conversations with the Poles, of which as yet I have heard nothing from you. I am not complaining at all of this, because I know we are working for the general theme and purposes, and I hope you will feel that has been so in my conduct of the Greek affair...

The President's reply of June 27 settled this argument between friends. "It appears," he said, "that both of us have inadvertently taken unilateral action in a direction that we both now agree to have been expedient for the time being. It is essential that we should always be in agreement in matters bearing on our Allied war effort."

I replied the same day: "You may be sure I shall always be looking to our agreement in all matters before, during, and after."

The difficulties, however, continued on a governmental level.

As the sun goes down tonight...

... it will be the signal for a great spectacle to spread westward across this broad land of ours. Millions of people will see it, yet scarcely one of them will think it worthy of comment. It is the forgotten wonder, lost among so many newer wonders. It is electric light.

From myriad city windows it will shine forth, creating its own beautiful patterns in the night, as in the view of the Vancouver waterfront above. It will stream from the open doorways of farm buildings in remote communities ... poke probing fingers of light into the sky from airport beacons ... and, everywhere, set about its task of adding pleasant hours to the day for well-earned recreation.

Today we have moved far beyond the point where we light our homes solely for the purpose of being able to see comfortably; we now devise interior lighting schemes for each room to add to the decorative effect of furniture and drapes. We have increased the intensity of outdoor lighting until there is hardly an activity of the daytime that cannot be successfully carried on "under the lights"—from playing baseball and tennis to loading freight cars and landing airliners. In our stores, we use lighting to present the goods in a sales-compelling setting. Schoolrooms have a high level of uniform light so that every pupil can study without fatigue.

Modern street lighting, not only adds to the safety and convenience of pedestrians and motorists but provides a reassuring sense of security to householders as well.

Canadian General Electric has been in the business of making electric lamps for over sixty years. It has pioneered a long succession of improvements that have resulted in better illumination—including the inside-frosted bulb, the new White Bulb with even higher efficiency and softly-diffused light, and the remarkably economical, long-life, fluorescent lamp that has revolutionized the lighting of industrial plants, stores, and offices. In no small measure, its work has resulted in the cost of good lighting falling consistently over the years. Not so many years ago a 60-watt bulb cost close to a dollar. Today you can buy one for about a fifth of that and yet it will give you much more light.

As a public service, the Company maintains a Lighting Institute where people from industry, hospitals, hotels, municipalities—wherever good lighting is needed—may learn all that is newest and best in lighting practice.

Long a leader in lighting research, Canadian General Electric can be depended upon to head the steady march of progress towards better, more efficient and more abundant light to serve Canada's needs.

Clothes Hidden In Motel Traced To Slain CWAC

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Clothing found in Woodstock, Ont., motel last week has been identified as belonging to Marie-Anne Carrier, 21-year-old Blenheim, Que., reserve army sergeant who was murdered two weeks ago. Lt. Col. Leon Lambert, eastern Quebec provincial police director, said today.

"The clothes have been identified by the Carrier family as those the girl wore the night she disappeared," Col. Lambert said. They included a salmon-colored coat and underclothing worn by the dead girl when she left home October 14 to attend a CWAC reserve unit parade in Quebec City.

Miss Carrier's nude and stabbed body was found in a ditch at Iroquois, Ont., October 16, and Lieut. Peter Balcombe, 24, attached to the Valcartier army camp, was arrested and charged with murder.

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel

Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the quality of the interior. Rich-looking upholstery and appointments—color-matched to the exterior color. Roomy, comfortable seats with foam rubber cushions. Chevrolet, you know, has the world-famous Body by Fisher—and you can certainly tell the difference in quality and workmanship! Just turn the ignition key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

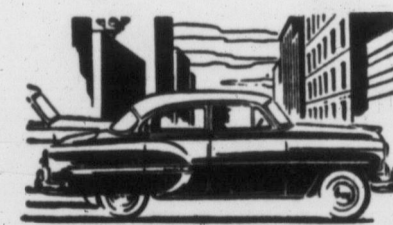

You get more power on less gas

Here's all the power and performance you could ever ask for. And along with it comes the most important gain in economy in Chevrolet history! That's because Chevrolet's two great valve-in-head engines are high-compression engines. In Powerglide* models, you get the most powerful engine in Chevrolet's field—the new 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame." Gearshift models offer you the new 108-h.p. "Thrill-King" engine.

You can see all around

You see all the road ahead and see it close in. For you look out and down through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield that sweeps back to narrow corner posts. The panoramic rear window and big windows provide a clear view in all directions. And, as an option at extra cost, you can enjoy the extra comfort and safety of GM Shade-Lite Tinted Glass, with exclusive, graduated windshield tinting.

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide*

A lot finer performance on a lot less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide automatic transmission. Now you're automatically in "low" range for standing starts and for quick passing in city traffic. Then—automatically again—you slip smoothly into "cruising" range as you pick up speed. There's no finer or more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Even Power Steering for Driving Ease

Just like the highest-priced cars, Chevrolet offers you the amazing convenience of Power Steering on all models. You ought to try Power Steering to see how easy driving can be. Even standing still, you can spin the wheel with one finger! Yet there's nothing new to learn and you actually have safer control under all conditions. It's optional, of course, at extra cost.

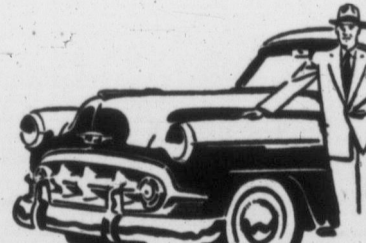

Jumbo-Drum brakes for smoother, easier stops

You'll feel safe and secure with these greatly improved Chevrolet brakes under your foot. An easy nudge on the brake pedal brings smooth, positive response—right now! With their 11-inch drums, Chevrolet brakes are extra large for extra safety. Bonded brake linings last up to twice as long as the more common riveted type.

A Smoother and a Safer Ride

Chevrolet has ample weight to give a good, road-hugging ride. It isn't just weight that's been added indiscriminately, it's weight that comes from Chevrolet's extra strength, weight that means extra protection and safety because it's been utilized in strengthening body and frame. What's more, Chevrolet is the lowest priced car with Unitized Knee-Action.

And it's the lowest-priced line

A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers just about everything you could want. Yet it's the lowest-priced line in the low-price field. So what's the point in paying more—today and over the months ahead? You can be ahead in every way with a new Chevrolet!

*Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.

Grid Debate Rages

Eskimo Fans Ired By Vessels' Injury

EDMONTON (CP)—While halfback Billy Vessels undergoes a complete hospital rest cure for a painful back injury, debate still rages among Edmonton fans over the circumstances of the Eskimo star's injury which may or may not keep him out of the Western Interprovincial Football Union finals.

Centre of the controversy is Buck Rogers, defensive lineman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Rogers is reported to have made the tackle which resulted in the former Oklahoma Sooner being carried off the field on a stretcher Saturday night with a fractured muscle attachment on the spine.

An Eskimo club official who remains unidentified, and some of the Edmonton players have contended that Vessels, the WIFU's top ground gainer and runner-up in touchdown scoring, was "deliberately kned" in the back as he was starting to get up after being tackled.

However, Eskimo coach Darrell Royal and the Edmonton sports writers are making no accusations.

"Darrell didn't make any recommendation to me regarding the Vessels incident and no charge regarding deliberate injury was laid," WIFU president Walter Sprague said.

"If I thought such a thing was premeditated I would resign this office," Sprague said. "I would want no part of the western conference."

A news photo of the play showed Vessels jack-knifed in the act of falling, with end Bud Grant holding onto a leg, guard Dean Bandiera clutching a knee and Rogers moving in from behind.

It will be Laurie Kerr and Don McIntyre versus Pat Frith and Buster Shade in the final for the Dr. Bryant Trophy Sunday at Colwood Golf Club.

The duos gained the final of the two-ball foursomes competition by winning semi-final matches Sunday.

Kerr and McIntyre advanced with a 3 and 2 victory over W. Cotton and W. C. Blackstock while Frith and Shade moved into the final by virtue of their 4 and 3 victory over G. Cartwright and A. W. Brownlie.

Mantle Must Undergo Surgery

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Mickey Mantle, star Yankee center-fielder, came back to home territory Monday to have medical look at what is loosely called a "football knee."

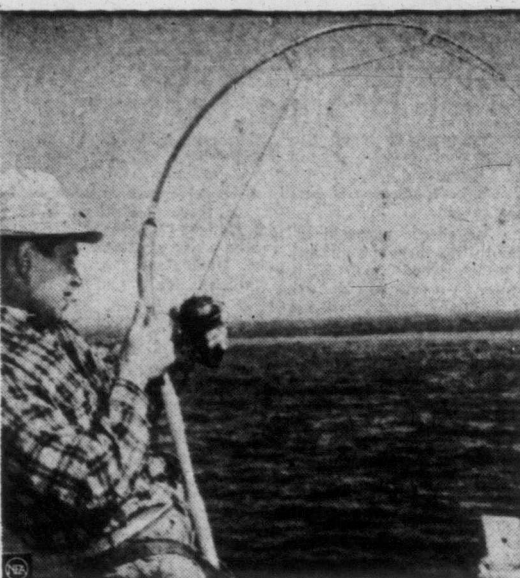

Doctors here agreed with earlier diagnoses that the knee should be operated on. Mantle tore a cartilage in the 1951 world series and reinjured it in July this year.

The doctors said an operation will not hurt Mantle's future as a ball player. Mantle said the Yankee organization will decide when the operation is to be performed.

Spinning a Tall Tale

One of the newest fads in the sports angling world is spinning for sharks with threadline gear and one of the top experts in this line is Chuck Meyer of Patchogue, N.Y. ## BOMBERS TOUGH

Frank Hopeful But Cautious

REGINA (CP)—Playing-coach Frank Filchock isn't exactly moaning the blues when he says the Western Interprovincial Football Union semifinal between his Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers "is gonna be awful rough—we're gonna be lucky to get past Winnipeg."

"They have lots of material—lots of good Canadians," said Filchock, who has watched 20 years of football slip by since he first donned a uniform for Indiana University.

Filchock herds his team onto the train tonight for Winnipeg. Riders meet Bombers Wednesday night in the first game of the two-game total-point series, then head home to Taylor Field for the second game Saturday afternoon.

Flinging Frank established himself as a star-gazer last year when he piloted Edmonton Eskimos through the semi-final, the final and into the Grey Cup game, where Eskimos lost 21-17 to Toronto Argonauts.

LIONEL THINKS SO

Do WIFU Clubs Freeze In Cup Final?

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Lionel Conacher, the former "Big Train" of Canadian football, thinks western clubs tighten up in Grey Cup finals.

Conacher, now Liberal MP for Toronto Trinity, told a $10-a-plate sports banquet here Saturday night that some of the best football in the world is being played on the Prairies.

Describing the western game as wide-open and crowd-pleasing, he added: "But why, oh why, don't western fans play it with the same recklessness in the East-West final?"

Conacher said great like quarterbacks Glenn Dobbs of Saskatchewan Roughriders and Indian Jack Jacobs of Winnipeg Blue Bombers seem to lose their daring somewhere between the Lakehead and Varsity Stadium, where the Grey Cup game is played.

Cougars Surprise, Trip Stampeders

Steve Black Lost to Cowboys

Victoria 6, Calgary 4

Only one game was played in the Western Hockey League Monday night, but that one was fast, furious, fractious and surprising.

Coach Billy Reay took his last-place Victoria Cougars into Calgary's Stampede Corral, where they laced their second-place hosts 6-4.

Stampeders suffered a second blow in their fight to overhaul the front-running Vancouver Canucks when Steve Black, tall, hefty left-winger currently leading the league in scoring, was taken to hospital with a possible broken collar-bone after being hurt in the second period.

Reay, who hit the empty Calgary net in the final seconds of the game, Andy Heberton, Stan Maxwell, Bob Manson, Walter Clune and Colin Kilburn scored the Victoria goals. Calgary scorers were John Michaluk, Max Quackenbush, Fred Hucl and Steve Witluk.

Cougars opened their prairie tour with a 3-1 lead in the first period, matched Calgary two goals in the second and sawed off 1-1 in third period scoring.

Tonight Victoria swings up to Edmonton for the only game. Stampeders failed to show the spark that has featured their play to date and trailed from the outset.

Reay's goal came in the final seconds and was scored in an empty net after Stampeder goalie, Bill Brennan, had been pulled in favor of an extra forward.

HEBERTON GETS FIRST

Heberton got Cougars off on the right foot at 4:08 when he picked up a rebound and beat Brennan easily. Johnny Michaluk converted a goalmouth pass from Quackenbush for the equalizer less than a minute later.

Maxwell split the Calgary defense and went right in to drive one into the open corner and give Cougars a 2-1 lead at the 15:27 mark.

Manson took advantage of a Calgary defensive lapse to bring the count to 3-1 with just over a minute remaining in the period. The clubs split goals before the three-minute mark was reached in the second period.

PENALTY HURTS

Hucul moved Stamps to within one goal of the visitors but Kilburn got it back on a screened shot from just inside the blue line. With Cougars a man light, Stamps moved to within one goal for the second time in the period when Quackenbush drove one from an angle. Midway through the period, Cougars regained their two-goal bulge when Clune drove one past Brennan from about 30 feet out. Witluk scored on a pass-out from Lundy to bring Stamps into contention again and the Stamps went all out for the equalizer and finally pulled Brennan with one minute to play. The tactic backfired as Reay grabbed a loose puck at centre ice, skated to the Calgary blue and fired it into the open net for the insurance marker.

Gaye Stewart Holds AHL Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Gaye Stewart, veteran left wing of Buffalo Bisons, led the American Hockey League scorers through games of last Sunday with 13 points on seven goals and six assists.

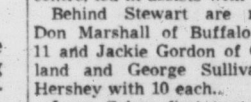

Stewart, who made his professional debut with Hershey of the AHL in 1941 and played with all of the National League teams except Boston, compiled his total in eight games. His seven goals were tops in the league. Cal Stearns, Cleveland centre, led in assists with eight.

Behind Stewart are rookie Don Marshall of Buffalo with 11 and Jackie Gordon of Cleveland and George Sullivan of Hershey with 10 each.

Larry Cahen, first-year player with Pittsburgh Hornets, maintained his penalty lead with 22 minutes. Emile Francis, Cleveland goalie had the best average in that department with 2.43 on 17 goals allowed in seven games.

Shirari Keeps Flyweight Title

TOKYO (AP)—World flyweight champion Yoshio Shirari Tuesday night (Tokyo time), turned back the challenge of London's Terry Allen in 15 dreary rounds that were heavy on clinches and light in action.

The decision was unanimous. The referee scored the fight, 149-136 for Shirari. One judge had it 150-136, the other 150-130. The Associated Press card gave Shirari nine rounds, Allen four and rated two even.

It was a dismal fight. Two more reluctant battlers probably never tangled for a world crown.

Until Shirari opened up in the last three rounds the crowd of 30,000 sat on their hands.

For the first 11 rounds the referee was the busiest man in the ring as he broke up a series of clinches.

Early in the fight for the 112-pound crown Allen forced what action there was, but Shirari landed the solid blows. However, the champion seemed reluctant to follow up.

The champion weighed 110½, the challenger the flyweight limit of 112.

SECOND TRY

The fight was Allen's second unsuccessful attempt to regain the crown he held briefly in 1950 and lost to Dado Marino of Hawaii. Marino also out-pointed Allen in his other attempt to win back boxing's smallest title.

GORGE VALE GOLF

Mrs. B. Thirlwell won silver division honors with a net 79 in the monthly medal competition at Gorge Vale Golf Club Sunday. Miss I. Stock won the bronze division with a net 79.

Stamps' Steve Black Leads Point-Getters

Calgary "Stampeders" Steve Black is the top scorer in the Western Hockey League, according to latest official league statistics.

In games through last Sunday, Black retained his lead for the second straight week with nine goals and 10 assists, a four-point bulge over teammate Frank Ashworth, who holds down second spot with five goals and 10 assists for 15 points.

Close behind follow Sid Finney, Calgary, with seven goals and seven assists for 14 points; Vancouver's A.D.V. Bathgate with nine goals and four assists for 13 points, and George Senick of Saskatoon with seven goals and six assists for 13 points.

Any of the runners-up now stand a good chance of taking over first place as Black was injured during Monday night's game with Victoria Cougars and was taken to hospital with a possible broken collar bone.

Two Saskatoon players lead the penalty parade. Howie Milford leads with 31 minutes while Bill Heindel is close behind with 27 minutes.

Lorne Worsley of Vancouver Canucks continued to pace the goals with a 1.77 goals-against average. Bill Brennan, Calgary, is runner-up with 2.00 mark.

Top ten scorers follow:

Black, Calgary	9	10	19
Ashworth, Calgary	5	10	15
Finney, Calgary	7	7	14
Bathgate, Vancouver	9	4	13

Indians Add Another Scalp

One of the toughest teams in the Pacific Coast Football Conference this season are the Stanford Indians and one of the main reasons for their success has been the passing of quarterback Bob Garrett. Here Stanford end Sam Morely hugs the ball to his chin after receiving a toss from Garrett and going for a long gain during Saturday's game between Stanford and Washington Huskies. Reaching for Morely was Washington's fullback Ed Gage (46). Stanford won the close game, 13-7. (NEA.)

Walls Tops Ratings In Latest Ring List

MONTCTON, N.B. (CP)—Sixty-eight fighters are listed in latest Canadian Boxing Federation ratings released by Robert H. Chandler of Monton, C.B. vice-president.

Earl Walls of Toronto heads the list as heavyweight champion of Canada. Walls scored a couple of startling victories over Rex Layne, contender for the world heavyweight title.

Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., wears the light heavyweight crown. He also claims the middleweight title but the C.B.F. says he can hold only one at a time. The middleweight spot is listed as vacant. There are vacancies also in featherweight and flyweight divisions.

The ratings:

Heavyweight—Champion, Earl Walls, Toronto; Contender, Jimmy Parker, Toronto; Vern Escoe, Toronto; Billy Wallace, Vancouver; Baby Face Saunders, Winnipeg; Sunny Nathanson, Edmonton; Ed Smith, Calgary; Doug Harper, Edmonton; Billy Carter, Vancouver.

Giardello Wins

BROOKLYN (AP)—Joey Giardello, high-ranking Philadelphia middleweight contender, finished strong Monday night to punch out an unanimous decision over Walter Cartier of New York in a telecast 10-rounder. Giardello, a 9 to 5 favorite, weighted 158½ to Cartier's 160.

This was a bruising battle all the way and just about even through the first six rounds. Then 23-year-old Giardello's combination punches proved too much for the left-hooking Cartier.

NHL ROUND-UP

Less Goals But Also Fewer Ties

MONTREAL (CP)—While Messrs. Reibel, Howe, Geoffrion and Lindsay continue their merry, but positionally unchanged, battle for point-scoring leadership take a cautious peek at what's going on in the National Hockey League.

In the 24 games played so far this season there have been only three ties—or one in every eight games.

Going back to the corresponding statistical Monday of last season, seven ties had turned up in 23 games, but a peculiar thing about the present scarcity of ties is that fewer goals have been scored than in the corresponding period last season. To date 110 goals have been scored, an average of 4.6 a game. Last year in the first 23 games there were 117 goals, an average of 5.1.

CONTRADICTS CLARENCE All of which is contrary to a maxim president Clarence Campbell of the NHL will recite at the drop of a puck—"when the number of goals increases, ties decrease."

The current scoring statistics shed no light on this minor enigma, but they do show that Earl Dutch Reibel is still leading the parade. The Detroit Red Wings' rookie collected two assists last week and his total now is 13. His closest pursuers also picked up two points apiece.

Gordie Howe, Reibel's teammate and three-times champion, added a goal and assist, giving him 11 points. Bernie Geoffrion of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens also gathered in one goal and assist and at 10 points is tied with Detroit's Ted Lindsay, who matched Reibel's two assists in three games.

RICHARD LEADS Maurice Richard of Montreal heads the goal-scoring with six. Reibel still tops the league in assists with nine.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit continues to set the pace for goalies. His goals-against average is a remarkable 1.11. Harry Lumley of Toronto and Gerry McNeil of Montreal are closest with 1.67.

SCORING RULES EXPLAINED

Grid Collection Necessary Evil

Football costs money—even on the Victoria junior-intermediate level.

And that is why, at recent Victoria Junior Football League games, a plea has been issued over the public address system for fans to give generously when collection boxes are passed around at half-time.

The league has big plans for both junior and intermediate ball in Victoria next season but these plans take money—more money than the estimated average donation of six cents a head at league games this season.

Perhaps many of the week-end fans do not realize how much it costs to put one adequately equipped player on the field.

This is the breakdown facing clubs for each of the 26 players they dress for each game: Helmet $12-$20, shoulder pads $15, hip pads $5-$10, pants $8-$12, sweater $5-$8, boots $15, socks, athletic support, T-shirt $5.

This means from $60 to $100 to put one player on the field.

There have been several phone calls to this department from football followers who are hazy on the scoring in the Canadian game.

The touchdown, or major, is worth five points and the convert, which may be kicked, run or passed, is worth an additional point. Next in value to the major is the field goal which may be dropped or kicked from placement and is worth three points.

A safety touch is worth two points and occurs when a player grounds the ball behind his own goal-line or is tackled there while in possession of the ball.

Example—A player drops back into his own end zone to pass and is tackled there. Score two points.

However, if the ball crosses the line through impetus of the opposing team, it is a rouge, worth one point.

Example—Player catches opposition punt in own end zone and is tackled before he can run it out. Score one point.

The kick to deadline or single is worth one point and is scored when a punt or placekick bounces into and through the end zone without the defending team being able to run it out.

Vampire Coach Ray Mitchell was elated over the turnout of youngsters from 12 to 16 that attended his two week-end clinics. Mitchell was swamped with eager youngsters and is delegating his more experienced players as coaches for the tyros.

Royal Roads Coach Dave Turner tells a story that perhaps illustrates why the undersized cadets are tied for first.

Irish Hold Top College Grid Rating

NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame's victory over Georgia Tech brought a new wave of popularity Monday for the fighting Irish, who tightened their grip on the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press' weekly football poll.

Georgia Tech, its unbeaten string snapped at 31 games, and Michigan State, upset by Purdue after a winning string of 28, managed to hold positions in the top 10 but had to be content with lower rungs. Michigan State fell from second to sixth and Georgia Tech from fourth to eighth.

MARYLAND SECOND

Maryland moved into second place on an imposing record of six straight victories while undefeated Baylor and once-tied Illinois followed in that order. West Virginia is fifth.

Southern Cal took over seventh place on the strength of its 32-20 thumping of California. UCLA moved into 10th after humbling Washington State, 44-8. Oklahoma is ninth.

VMD Golfers Win Challenge Match

Alouettes Hard Hit By Loss of Linemen

MONTREAL (BUP)—The Montreal Alouettes, tied for first place in the Big Four Football League with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said Monday they would be without five linemen during their next few games.

Four Montreal forwards were injured Sunday when the Ottawa Rough Riders defeated the Alouettes, 30-15 here, and the fifth, Juan Sheridan, suffered an injured knee prior to yesterday's game.

Most seriously injured yesterday was big Tex Coulter who suffered a fractured left ankle and will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season. Coulter, a former New York Giant, who was the bulwark of the Montreal line as well as the club's punting expert, was injured blocking on an Ottawa kickoff to backfielder Phil Adrian to open the third quarter.

Ray Poole, also a former New York Giant and the Alouette convert kicker and offensive end, will be lost for two weeks with two broken ribs suffered when tackled by Ed Yablonski of the Riders after catching a pass from Sam Etcheverry late in the final quarter.

Ray Clia, a tackle, wrenched his right knee in the second quarter and left the game with a torn cartilage, while Dave Tomlinson, a former McGill University lineman, was kicked on the shin by Avatus Stone in

GRUBER CONJURES WITH MUSIC

Symphony Wins to New Heights With Tchaikowski Presentation

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Victoria Symphony Orchestra has seldom had a program better arranged, nor a performance more successful in climactic effect, than that presented in Monday night's all-Tchaikowski concert.

Hans Gruber, with a concentration of vitality and will that lies almost unsuspected within the non-flamboyant style of his conducting—the full impact is reserved for one's ears, nothing being wasted on merely visual effect—conjured his musicians into playing as they have not played before.

Strings were brilliant, brass was rich and full; woodwinds, ever a strength to the orchestra, excelled themselves. With the result that the audience in general was transported easily from the lyric poicism of the Serenade for String Orchestra, to the dramatic violence of "Francesca da Rimini" and thence to the powerful and poignant expressions of a human spirit, revealed in the Sixth, the "Pathétique" Symphony.

The latter was without doubt the most challenging offering in a purely musical sense, for both conductor and orchestra. It was also without doubt the cream of the program as far as performance went.

Mood descended upon one like a spell as the bassoon intoned its opening phrases, the lovely viola section answered, and scintillating orchestral color flared into life.

FIVE-BEAT RHYTHM

The odd five-beat rhythm of the second movement was smooth and subtle; the third, so triumphantly successful, the impulse to break into bravos on the part of the audience, was barely restrained. The brass section here was vivid, secure, agile, sending tongues of flame and searing highlights through the marvelous orchestral fabric, while the authority and unanimity of the strings swept the whole movement forward in exhilaration.

Change of mood in the final section was accomplished with a completeness that was deeply satisfying. A rich and wide variety of color is now at Gruber's command and was fully utilized to evoke the despairing and impassioned spirit of this ultimate expression of the composer's personality.

The "Francesca" was technically a tour de force, particularly for strings and brass, though the solo clarinet was responsible for some of the most memorable moments of the evening. The emotional excitement of this performance, its sheer virtuosity, the brilliant control of the director, elicited a prolonged ovation at the intermission.

Perhaps because it was first on the program and the orchestra had not quite settled down, the "Serenade," while lovely in many aspects, was not quite so successful as the balance of the program. Some uncertainty in the tapering off of phrases, occasional lack of cohesion troubled this performance and the familiar waltz-section lacked something of the characteristic rhythmic lilt.

However, in such a program, so stimulating to one's pride in the orchestra as well as to the emotions, such faults must appear as relatively negligible.

QUEEN'S ENTRANCE TELEVIEWED TO AUDIENCE IN THEATRE

LONDON (CP)—Something new was added to the royal motion picture performance Monday night when the invited audience watched the Queen's arrival on large-screen television from their seats inside the theatre.

They saw the Queen chatting in the lobby with screen stars, including Gary Cooper, Jeanne Crain and Gloria Grahame, before she made her entry into the royal box.

The Queen was accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret for the command performance of the new Walt Disney picture, "Roby Roy."

Thousands of persons packed into Leicester Square, heart of London's movieland. Hundreds of policemen had to link arms to hold back the cheering throngs as stars and royalty made their entrances to the floodlit theatre.

U.S. TESTIMONY 'HOT POTATO'

External Affairs Wants To Keep Gouzenko at Home

OTTAWA (BUP)—Canadian diplomatic and federal policy today with police protection at various undisclosed spots in Canada.

The external affairs department had a bad case of the diplomatic and political jitters as a result of an interview Gouzenko gave to an American newspaper (the Chicago Tribune) and the resultant suggestion that he should give evidence to the U.S. investigators.

Officials conceded they would "deeply regret" having to handle an official diplomatic request from the U.S. state department to let investigators for the committee of Sen. William Jenner (R., Ind.) and Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) talk with Gouzenko.

Government officials said there probably would be strong protests from groups within the Canadian parliament and sections of the Canadian public generally to such action. The investigations of both senators have been sharply criticized by government leaders and spokesmen for the opposition in parliament.

INDIAN GRANTS

OTTAWA (BUP)—Tuition grants totaling some $300,000 have been earmarked to help 700 young Canadian Indians further their education this year, the department of citizenship and immigration announced today.

Among those receiving financial aid are 18 university students, 21 nursing students, 12 training as nurses' assistants, six at provincial normal schools and seven teachers who took training courses last summer.

Blonde Vocalist Tells City Gyros Of Korean Visit

To the Vancouver home of petite blonde singer, Lorraine McAllister, this Christmas will go countless greetings from Canadian servicemen . . . and members of Victoria Gyro Club.

Lorraine took a special trip to Victoria Friday to speak to the Gyros about her Korean visit last Christmas when she sang to the soldiers in the front line, in the supply depots and in hospitals.

Accompanying her was Karl Karleen, accordionist; the two of them performed daily from Christmas Eve until January 4 when they flew back to Tokyo.

Her talk, by intention, was a series of incidents rather than a deliberate day-by-day report.

She described her meetings with the various Canadian regiments: Lord Strathcona's, Royal 22nd and the Princess Patricia's with whom she spent New Year's Eve.

Entertainment committee chairman Ken Jones thanked Miss McAllister on behalf of the club.

First Step Taken Toward Civic Responsibility

Mary Lou Findler, left, was one of the first to register as a B.C. voter from the ranks of newly-enfranchised 19 and 20-year-olds. Her friend, Evelyn Gill, centre, 18, learns the procedure, because she'll register next year. Mrs. S. McGregor is registration clerk. Although Election Act amendments at the last session of the Legislature offered the vote to more than 1,700 here, only 200 so far have registered. Deadline is Saturday in 12 city registry offices, and the opportunity for first ballot Nov. 24. (Times Photo.)

BETWEEN TIMES

B.C.'s new 10 per cent liquor sales tax is going to reduce to a minimum dancing in licensed clubs. This is because if there is any dancing the tax applies to drinks, meals, cigarettes and any purchases in the establishment. Operators point out that those actually dancing may not mind paying the extra tax; but patrons not dancing would be penalized.—News Item.

Presenting—that dramatic drama of real-life police work—Dripnet!

My name is Bill Thursday—Sgt. Bill Thursday. I just had a call from the chief. The chief said I'm to go out on a 728. Just routine; a 728 at the Old School Tie Social & Athletic Club.

All the chief said was, he suspected skulduggery. And he said I had pulled more skulls than any other man on the force, so I was the logical man for the job.

Encouraged by the chief's praise, I went immediately to the Old School Tie etc., knocked at the door, and went in. I glanced swiftly around the room, and at once saw that the chief's suspicions were justified.

I went up to a table where a beautiful blonde was sitting, and I said to her:

"Pardon me, mam. Like to ask you a few questions, mam."

"What is this?" she said. "A pinch?"

"No, mam. Not that I wouldn't like a little pinch, mam. But this is just routine, mam."

"What you wanna know?" she asked.

"Just routine, mam. Just wanna ask a few questions, mam. You drinking, mam?"

"Sure, and why not?"

"Quite all right, mam. Don't get upset. Just wanna get the facts. Just routine."

"So, I'm drinking. So what?"

"Afraid I'm gonna have to take you in, mam. I'm booking you on a 728, mam."

"A 728? Me? A 728? Why me? And what's a 728?"

"A 728, mam, is an offense against the liquor act. Not concentrating on your drinking, mam."

"Whaddya mean, I'm not concentrating on my drinking?"

"Don't get excited, mam. Nothing to get excited about, mam. Just wanna get the facts, mam."

"Well, the facts are, I'm sitting here, minding my own business, having a quiet drink..."

"All right, mam. But that's your right foot doing, mam?"

"My right foot? I dunno. Oh, I see. My right foot's sort of tapping, like."

"That's what I mean, mam. This is just routine but I wanna get the facts. Why is your right foot tapping?"

"Well, gee, I didn't know I was doin' anything wrong. But there is this old tune, see, and it is sort of running through my head, see—and I guess I was tapping my foot in time to the music I could hear in my head."

"That's all, mam, I'm taking you in on a 728. Not concentrating on your drinking. Tapping the foot while listening to music in the head constitutes an offense, mam."

"Please, please. Do you HAVE to do this?"

"Sorry, mam. Nothing personal. Just wanna get the facts. Just wanna get the facts."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Alexander Muse, 1217 Carlisle, was fined $30 by Magistrate H. C. Hall when he was found guilty in Esquimalt police court Monday to a charge of ill-treatment of a dog.

Evidence was that Muse used a hockey stick to disperse a pack of dogs in his yard. One dog with a badly cut head was later destroyed. Charge was laid by the SPCA.

Henry H. Saboe, 65, of 730 Vancouver, who suffered a fractured skull when struck by a bus in the city last Thursday night, was reported in "fairly good" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today. Saboe was hurt while crossing the Douglas-Humboldt intersection.

The Sooke Teachers' Association has elected the following members to attend the teachers' convention at Duncan, November 13: A. H. Stephenson, R. Pawels, R. C. Atkins, N. G. Rogers, E. Pollard and Miss M. A. Bromley.

A. P. Slade (Victoria) Ltd. has moved from its place of business on lower Yates Street to a new $350,000 warehouse on Johnson Street beyond the west end of Johnson Street Bridge. The new warehouse has 60,000 square feet of space, including 11 lockers to keep fruits and vegetables fresh and to ripen produce.

Freight elevators, some portable, have been incorporated in the building.

Five feature films will be shown in the Victoria Public Library music room Thursday at 8 p.m. by the Victoria and District Film Council. It was announced by Mrs. Beverley Kent, secretary. The films are: Shyness; a Man, a Dog and a Gun; Wonders of the Deep; Queen of the Border; and Rocky Mountain Trout.

Some city businessmen were unusually lax Monday night on leaving their places of business. City policemen on the rounds checking premises found 12 of them insecure.

Constable Lorne Shandley is the new president of the city police federal union, city police commission was notified today by the union.

Others on the executive are: Angus Stewart, vice-president; Rodney McNeill, recording secretary; John Perry, secretary-treasurer; John Rickerby, warder; Alister Boyd, conductor, and Robert Blair, Lorne Johnson and Miss Alice Pye, trustees.

$400,000 NURSING HOME JOB AWAITS WEDNESDAY APPROVAL

Directors of Victoria Nursing Home Society meet Wednesday afternoon to award the contract for construction of the planned 104-bed addition to the Gorge Road home.

Farmer Construction Ltd. was the lowest of five firms tendering on the project. Its bid was slightly less than $400,000.

Although some arrangement remains to be made with the city in order that the Nursing Home Society may obtain a small parcel of adjoining property as part of the building site, this is not regarded as any real obstacle.

City officials have promised to "work something out" so that an early start can be made on construction.

Civil Servants Aim To Stop 'Free Riders'

All B.C. civil servants would be forced to pay annual dues to the B.C. Government Employees' Association under a resolution slated for presentation to the group's annual convention in Vancouver, October 30 and 31.

The association, which is the bargaining authority for 9,000 government workers, will ask the government to adopt the Rand Formula "to eliminate free riders" among the employees.

This would mean the 2,000 civil servants, who now get the benefits of the association's bargaining for wages and other matters but don't belong to the association, would have to pay dues to the association. But they wouldn't have to join it. At present, the association has no union security or maintenance of membership provisions covering government employees.

Other resolutions to be debated at the convention call for:

1. Establishment of an impartial board of arbitration (similar to that enjoyed by the school teachers) for the settling of disputes between the government and its employees.

2. Extension of the five-day, maximum 40-hour week to all provincial government employees. About 60 per cent of the civil servants are still denied the shorter week, officials claim.

3. Three weeks' annual vacation after one year's service.

4. Maintenance of wages for government employees comparable to those paid by private industry.

5. Semi-monthly payment of wages.

6. Government contributions to the B.C. Government Employees' Medical Services similar to those provided the B.C. Power Commission employees, the Workmen's Compensation Board and many municipalities.

7. Extension of unemployment insurance coverage to government employees.

Big, Black 'X' Only Marking For Valid By-Election Ballot

Only ballots marked with a black lead pencil will be accepted in the November 24 Victoria by-election and all other future elections in B.C.

This was a controversial point in recent elections when confusion arose over the legality of inked ballots.

But the revised Election Act makes it quite clear that only a black lead pencil can be used to mark a ballot.

And only an "X" will be accepted as a proper mark.

Returning Officer Alan Macfarlane, who has set up headquarters at 911 Government Street, expects to announce a winner in the by-election 90 minutes after the polls close.

Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in about 40 polling places throughout the city.

The advance poll will be held at the YMCA November 19, 20 and 21.

Because the complicated alternative voting system is no longer to be used in B.C., results of elections will be known in double-quick time.

Wright Refused Job, May Aim for Council

Ex-MLA Believed Under Pressure To Contest Aldermanic Vacancy

By DAVE STOCK, Times City Hall Reporter

Percy Wright, who Monday was refused reinstatement as assistant city clerk, may try for a seat on City Council in December.

A suggestion that he enter the civic contest was made by some of his close friends more than a month ago. Now that he has resigned as MLA and has been refused re-employment at City Hall, it is expected they will press their proposal further.

Mr. Wright, himself, is very cautious in answering questions concerning his future plans.

"No comment on that, at the moment," he told the Times.

Mr. Wright learned that his old job of assistant city clerk was no longer open to him when he saw City Manager Cecil Wyatt late Monday afternoon.

Mr. Wright had been with the city 22½ years. He walked off the job Sept. 15 to take his place in the Legislature, to which he was elected last June. He reported back to work at City Hall immediately following the session but was refused re-employment. He made a further application for his old job the following day, after resigning as a legislator. On that occasion, Mr. Wyatt agreed to consider the case further.

Mr. Wright today reiterated that he accepts the manager's decision as final. He plans no appeal to city council.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Here Are Some Novel Items You've Not Seen Before!

By PENNY SAVER

Felt kinda blue this morning. I wanted to find a gold mine... a store full of cute little knick knacks you'd love to hear about... at prices you'd love to pay. But everywhere I went I found the same old things at the same old prices. Could have been just me, for my spirits matched the weather... foggy!

Anyway, I came across an old friend, who helpfully suggested I try her favorite gift shop, which turned out to be a place I'd never heard of before. What's more, I had to take a bus to get there.

In desperation I caught the bus! At least it didn't take long to get here. I thought as I got off several minutes later.

Then my mood changed. That shop was so full of novelty items for gift-giving that I couldn't believe my eyes. And it's 10 to 1 you won't find any of their out-of-the-ordinary items in any other Victoria shop.

There's a well-known comic strip which shows queer pictures hanging on the walls in the background of the cartoon. Picture caricatures are usually involved in chasing something and end up coming right out of the frames. (All same 3D).

You can really buy some of these pictures at this shop. One example is a man reaching out of the frame to swat a fly. The fly is separate from the picture and attaches to the wall on its own little hook. Caricatures in the pictures are made of porcelain.

Another one was showing a doctor preparing to operate on his patient... but the patient is out of the frame completely, running in the opposite direction.

One shows a hunter looking for a deer... the deer is behind the hunter, peering cautiously at him from outside the frame. Then there's a fielder trying to catch a baseball. Ball, on its own separate hook, attaches to the wall several inches from the frame. Price of these oddities is $3.25.

Another item featured in this novel gift shop is a box of emery boards for filing lady's fingernails. The boards are done up in folders similar to those containing matches. There are 10 folders in each attractive celluloid box for $1.45. Buy the folders separately at 15 cents. Each one is personalized with your name in gold.

For $1 you can buy a pretty morning glory to hang over your sink... but it's not just for decoration. The leaf forms a hook to hold your ring as you wash the dishes and the flower cups to hold your watch!

It's Time to Tell Off Philandering Husband

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

When a married man starts to spend his time with other women it's ripe for his wife to take a firm stand and make him choose between her and the others. So I tell this wife:

(Q)—"I am a married woman of 26 with two small children. A year ago I found a love letter addressed to my husband by a girl who works where he does. He assured me that this was just an infatuation on the girl's part. She was out of town but has now returned to her old job. While she was away some of my husband's colleagues told me he was having a love affair with this girl's older sister. I have tried to tell these girls about my husband's double romance with them but they refuse to hear me, as does their mother. I have told my husband to leave but he denies these romances and insists that he wants only me and the children. He never spends an evening at home anymore. Please tell me what I should do."

(A)—You should give your husband the choice between being the right kind of husband and father, and leaving you to have affairs with other women. Let him know that you will no longer tolerate his behavior. It is up to him to change or get out.

It is lonely for you to be left alone evening after evening, it is humiliating to have people know of your husband's affairs with other women, and it is not fair to you and the children to have him spend his money entertaining someone else. You can be sure that these so-called infatuations cost him more than his time.

If he is unwilling to change, go to your pastor and ask him to arrange a legal separation for you. This would force your husband to live elsewhere but he would still be financially responsible for you and the children. By doing this you will be able to retain your self-respect and the respect of other people.

Dr. Hurlock will help you with family problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

He was thin. Hadn't shaved for more than a day. But he was a western face in a sea of brown skins on a street in Hiroshima. So we stopped to speak to him. . . . Vancouverite Mary Russell and I.

It was raining. The road was churned with thick brown mud. But he was hatless. Broken rubber soled shoes on his feet. Faded grey dungarees. Sports shirt and plastic rain cape. A missionary, he told us, in the slurring twang of the mid-eastern states. . . . When did he come to Hiroshima? . . . As soon as he could after the war. . . . How did he choose this particular city? . . . His thin face strengthened strangely. . . . "I asked my bishop for this place," he said, "and when he knew I was sincere, he made it possible for me to come."

His was a lone mission, he said. A crusade, we guessed. . . . or perhaps a protest against war. And we knew from the words he didn't say that there was not an easy thing he was doing, and that there was little money coming from home.

We stood in the rain on the muddy road, near the brand new Motoyasu Bridge. . . . and we talked of Hiroshima.

"It WAS once a city of war," the missionary acknowledged, as his grey eyes sought out a hillside on the outskirts of the city. . . . "Out there was Hiroshima's Castle of Carp, hundreds of years old. . . . On the plain below the castle, a great concentration of soldiers. . . . Japan's fifth division. . . . And I have been told, many more soldiers were coming."

He nodded his head at a 100-yard-wide boulevard behind us that cut straight across the middle of the city. . . . "The people were working on that," he explained, "but it wasn't a roadway then, it was a big firebreak. . . . They were preparing, you see. . . . for something! . . . Then came the bomb!"

Hiroshima Builds for Peace

He turned from us and looked slowly around the city. . . . "It was a place of death. . . . he said with a shudder. . . . And then, 'but it has risen again! And I have seen it rise! Stone buildings and little wooden houses with shining new tiles."

"I have heard the dogs begin to bark again. . . . little children learn to laugh again and to walk without fear, in the sun."

"Are there many scars?" we asked. . . . for our uninitiated eyes had detected few, as we walked the streets. . . . "Oh yes," he said, "there ARE scars!" . . . A thin hand nervously twisted the collar of his rain cape. . . . "Marks on legs and arms, dead white lips, twisted limbs. And old people and children who mutter and groan to themselves."

He slightly closed his eyes and looked steadily at us. . . . "The people of Hiroshima are proud. They wish everything to be as it was before. Only this time for PEACE and not for war. . . . You will not see these scars. . . . they are well hidden. . . . But come, I will show you something!"

We walked with him down a narrow winding street until we could see a twisted mass of iron and stone, etched crazily against the dull sky. Once it was the Industrial Exhibition Hall. . . . Close above it the atom bomb exploded.

It did not dissolve into dust but all that remains is part of the walls, a twisted iron stairs, the gaunt outline of the iron dome and piles of scattered stones.

Beside it, a small cement monument has been erected with one word inscribed. . . . "PEACE!"

Standing in the ruins we asked the missionary, how the people of Hiroshima felt about him when he arrived. . . . and if he knew how they felt about US as we walked their streets. "They were bitter at first," he said sadly. . . . "and among the old ones you meet on the street now, you may still see a look that makes you realize they have not forgotten."

"But the Japanese as a people believe strongly in fate. What is done, is done. . . . And so, the people of Hiroshima go on to build a new city."

He looked at us thoughtfully. . . . "Now you must go to the memorial. . . . talk to Shogo Nagaoka. . . . He will show you the ruins. . . . He left us then, striding swiftly away, his plastic raincape falling about his worn rubber shoes."

We walked to the Memorial Hall in the centre of the city. Guarded at the entrance by a grey stone torii and the traditional stone dogs. . . . And there we found Shogo Nagaoka, a bald-headed, round-faced Japanese, with the clear cold look of a zealot and the full lips of a man who once had been a friendly soul.

Professor Dedicates Life to Effort

Once he was a professor in the university of Hiroshima. Now he is another man with a mission. The gathering of relics, pictures and eye-witness information on the explosion of the atom bomb over Hiroshima. . . . He speaks no English (but like many another Japanese he understands it a little).

The day the atom bomb dropped he was on his way home by train from China. He was one of the first to enter the blasted city. . . . his interpreter told me. . . . and also one of the first to realize that it was atomic energy that had seared and scarred the people.

He does not teach now. He is in the employ of the government. And one of the moving spirits in the creation of Hiroshima as a city of peace.

He showed us a relief map of Hiroshima after the blast, with the skeletons of only 16 buildings left standing in a city that had housed more than 500,000 people. He pointed to pictures of the ruins. . . . crazily slanted girders, stone torii broken and smashed. Street-cars blown-to-bits, heavy-grave-stones carried miles. Scorched and pitted backs, legs and arms. Faces marked and gouged.

Stones that had fused into different metals. . . . trees that turned hard as stone. . . . shadows imprinted like photographs, one over the other, by the blast.

Then, he turned to the new Hiroshima. And through his interpreter told me of the town planning and the development going on. . . . that would eventually take in 10 square miles of flat land area in the city.

A modern styled residential zone established in the central burned-out area of four square miles. A 45-yard-wide main street almost completed to match the boulevard that was once a fire-break. The Peace-Park in the centre of the city in which a Peace Hall is being constructed at a cost of more than 400 million yen, as a place for international meetings. . . . "for the welfare of mankind."

Long term planning includes repairing of the port for the berthing of large tonnage vessels and the digging of a waterway that will increase power. (There are seven rivers running into the Inland Sea through Hiroshima).

In the meantime, the missionary from the mid-eastern states, the former university professor and many more like them, are working to create in Hiroshima, a symbol of peace.

They believe as the people have written on their peace tablets, "We, people of Hiroshima, who have experienced the horrors of atomic warfare, sincerely wish all the people of the world to reflect on Hiroshima and make up their minds never to let this happen again. . . . Of all the treasures of mankind, peace is, after all, the most precious!"

Future Home in Victoria

Newcomers to Victoria are Mrs. Neil Smith and two-year-old daughter, Alyson, who arrived recently from Ottawa to join Cmdr. (E) (AE) Smith. At present they are guests at Redwood Park Motel; Cmdr. Smith has been appointed to HMC Dockyard after serving for six months in HMCS Ontario.

Repeat Wedding Promises At First United Church

A double-ring ceremony in over satin and carrying a spray of gardenias in her hair. She wore two evening joined Naida Wong, daughter of Wong Kong, 919 Pembroke Street, in marriage with Toye Mar, son of Mrs. Albert Mar, 852 Princess Street.

Tall baskets of chrysanthemums in fall tones decked the church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. A. J. Waters.

Mrs. Ruth Champion sang "Because" during signing of the register and traditional organ music was played by Mrs. Roberto Wood. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

A gown of heavy white satin with decolletage neckline edged in seed pearls and beads, fitted bodice and full skirt, en train was worn by the attractive bride. From her close-fitting cloche edged with pearls and caught at the sides with sprays of lily of the valley misted a full-length veil. She carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Georgina Lowe, niece of the bride, and Miss Fannie Mar, sister of the groom. They wore gowns of pink and blue respectively in lace over satin and carried sprays of gardenias.

Miss Diana Lowe, niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a frock of pink net.

For motoring to San Francisco on honeymoon, the bride wore a blue worsted suit which matched the groom's suit, brown lizard accessories, brown squirrel jacket and white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Mar will live in Victoria.

Quinton Mar was best man for his brother, and Robert Lowe, nephew of the bride, Harry Mar, Roy Quan and George Chan were ushers.

Club Sirocco was scene of the reception, where a three-tier square wedding cake was cut by the newly-weds. Rod Jensen proposed the toast to the bride.

Japanese Woman Wins Quota Club Annual Fellowship

Miss Sachiko Sugawa of Futami-gun, Hiroshima Province, Japan, is latest recipient of Quota Club International's annual $1,000 Fellowship Award, according to word received by Victoria Quota Club.

Twenty-two-year-old Miss Sugawa, who has a degree from Doshisha University in Kyoto, has arrived in this country and has taken an orientation course at the University of Washington, prior to entering University of Kansas, where she will study English and American literature. She plans to return to Japan at the end of the current school year, to teach in Doshisha High School and Women's College.

Miss Sugawa is tenth student of foreign birth to receive Quota Club Fellowship awarded annually to a woman student from a non-communist dominated country. Applications are carefully screened by Institute of International Education and Quota Club International makes its selection on basis of the applicant's scholarship record and field of interest.

"Quota is particularly interested in helping students who are seeking higher education in a field that will be beneficial to the women in their native countries," Mrs. Ruth Hutchison, president of Victoria Quota Club, said today. "For example, our fellowship student last year took graduate work in public health nursing, in order to be able to help raise the health standards of women and children in India."

False Teeth Need
A Special Cleanser

Don't Brush Your Plates!
Soak Them in Polident
As Dentists Suggest

Polident is the recommended way to clean dentures, banish Denture Breath. Just follow these easy rules:

1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they get loose.

2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath".

3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only... Polident! Polident cleanser is recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates, Polident gets where a brush can't reach.

Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter.

Bus Mechanism Key to Case Counsel Suggests in Appeal

The assumption that buses of the B.C. Electric Railway Co. opened when doors are open was denied in Appeal Court Monday by Milton Gonzalez, counsel for the plaintiff in an action for $35,000 damages against the B.C. Electric Company.

The appeal arose out of an earlier action by Avory White, Vancouver accountant, who claimed he suffered injuries last January 29 when bus doors closed on his arm while he was trying to board the vehicle.

The appeal now under way is against the judgment last June 23 of Mr. Justice Coady who found the plaintiff guilty of contributing negligence and dismissed the case.

In the appeal, counsel contended that this judgment presupposed negligence also on the part of the B.C. Electric.

The bus must have started before the doors closed, he said, pointing out "you can't contribute to something (negligence) that doesn't exist."

A. Bruce Robertson is acting for the defendant. The appeal is continuing before Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan.

Prince Charles, Anne Pay Zoo First Visit

LONDON (AP)—Slipping by a side gate, Prince Charles took his little sister, Princess Anne, on her first visit to the London Zoo the other day.

But they got no farther than the parrot house before they were recognized and a crowd collected. Their two nurses and a detective reluctantly decided the Royal kiddies would have to go back to Buckingham Palace.

They'll try again some other day soon--when the crowds are not so big.

23 Abandoned Cats Found at Lime Bay

Victoria's Cats' Protection League rounded up 23 cats which were abandoned at Lime Bay shacks when the owners were evacuated, reports the president, Mrs. I. D. Woods.

Homes were found for some of them and the remainder were sent to a small animal hospital for euthanasia.

Membership of the CPL is increasing rapidly and it is hoped that with further public support it will soon be possible to open a shelter and clinic on lines operated by the CPL of Slough, England.

CPL officers recently elected are: president, Mrs. Woods; vice-president, Mrs. W. Collis; second vice-president, Mrs. H. Stevens; secretary, Mrs. H. M. Kerswell; treasurer, Miss F. Thirkell.

FBI DRAGNET CHECKS VENISON-LOVERS' PLATES

WASHINGTON (UP)—The FBI and local police were searching today for meat-hungry vandals who broke into the National Zoo, killed a white-tailed deer and spirited away its carcass.

The victim was an 18-month-old doe, weighing 165 pounds. Police noted this is a good age and weight for prime venison steak.

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

Plans Mapped For Invasion

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be carried daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

Liberating Normandy was a supreme event in the European campaign of 1944, but it was only one of several concentric strokes upon Nazi Germany. In the east the Russians were flooding into Poland and the Balkans, and in the south Alexander's armies in Italy were pressing towards the river Po. Decisions had now to be taken about our next move in the Mediterranean, and it must be recorded with regret that these occasioned the first important divergence on high strategy between ourselves and our American friends.

The design for final victory in Europe had been outlined in prolonged discussion at the Tehran Conference in November, 1943. First and foremost we had promised to carry out Overlord. Here was the dominating task, and no one disputed that here lay our prime duty. But we still wielded powerful forces in the Mediterranean, and the question remained, "What should they do?" We had resolved that they should capture Rome, whose nearby airfields were needed for bombing Southern Germany. This accomplished, we planned to advance up the peninsula as far as the Pisa-Rimini line, and there hold as many enemy divisions as possible in Northern Italy. This, however, was not all. A third operation was also agreed upon, namely, an amphibious landing in the south of France, and it was on this project that controversy was about to descend. It was originally conceived as a feint or threat to keep German troops on the Riviera and stop them joining the battles in Normandy, but in Cairo the Americans had pressed for a real attack by ten divisions and at Tehran Stalin had supported them. I accepted the change, largely to prevent undue diversions to Burma, although I contemplated other ways of exploiting success in Italy, and the plan had been given the code-name Anvil. One thing was plain: it was no use landing in the south of France unless we did so at the right time. Once we joined battle in Normandy Anvil's value was much reduced, because Hitler was not likely to detach troops from the main struggle in the north for the sake of keeping his hold on Provence. If we invaded the Riviera at all, we must do so before we landed in Normandy, and this was what we intended to do when we made our plans at Tehran.

Capture of Rome Delayed

A second condition also governed Anvil's usefulness. Many of the forces needed for the operation—that is to say, for the full-scale invasion as opposed to a feint or threat—would have to come from our armies in Italy. But these had first to accomplish the arduous and important task of seizing Rome and the airfields.

At Tehran we had confidently expected to reach Rome early in the spring, but this had proved impossible. The important descent at Anzio to accelerate the capture of Rome had drawn eight or ten German divisions away from the vital theatre, or more than was expected to be attracted to the Riviera by Anvil. This in effect superseded it by achieving its object. Nevertheless, the Riviera project went forward as if nothing had happened.

Apart from Anvil hanging somewhat vaguely in the future, some of the finest divisions of the armies in Italy had rightly been assigned to the main operation of Overlord and had sailed for England before the end of 1943. Alexander had thus been weakened and Kesselring had been strengthened. The Germans had sent reinforcements to Italy, had parried the Anzio swoop, and had stopped us entering Rome until just before D-day.

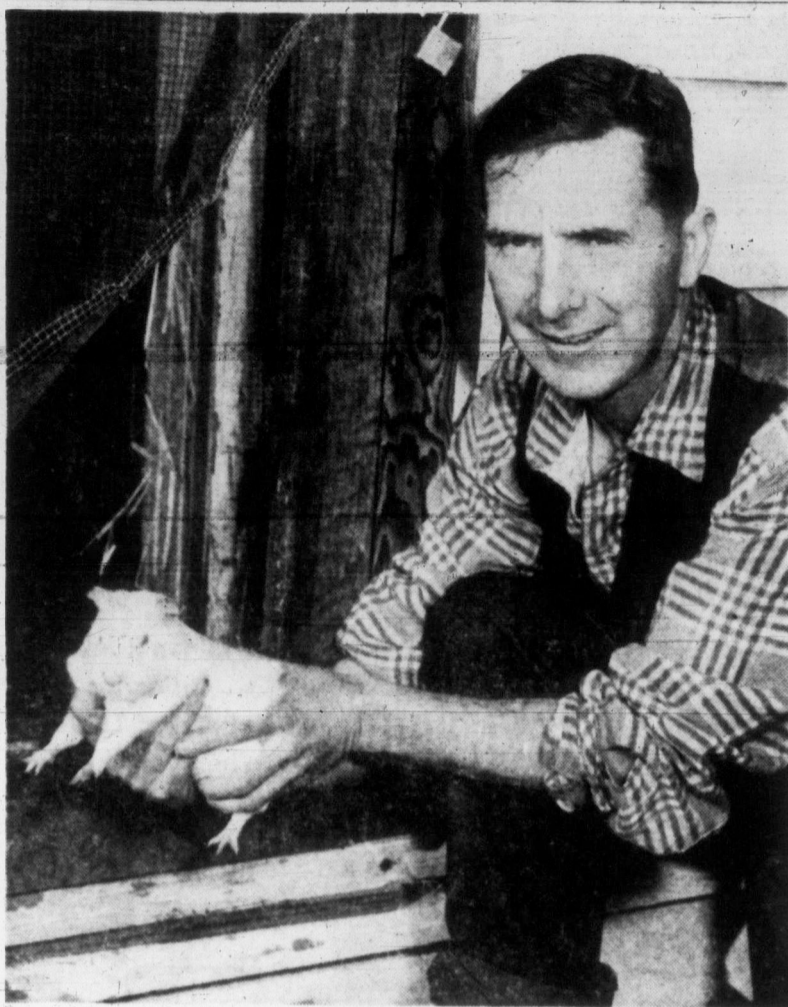

When Rome fell on June 4 the problem had to be reviewed. Should we go on with Anvil or should we make a new plan?

General Eisenhower naturally wanted to strengthen his attack in Northwest Europe by all available means. The American Chiefs of Staff agreed with Eisenhower, holding rigidly to the maxim of concentration at the decisive point, which in their eyes meant only Northwest Europe. They were supported by the President, who was mindful of the agreements made with Stalin many months before at Tehran. Yet all was changed by the delay in Italy.

Soon after D-day General Marshall came to England and expressed his concern about yet another problem. Enormous forces were accumulating in the United States, and should join the battle as soon as possible. The solution which General Marshall proposed was to capture entirely new bases in either the west or the south of France, and preferably in the west because this was the more quickly reached from America. I was fully alive to all this, and had for some time contemplated a descent on the Biscay coast from North Africa, even though this could not be achieved before the end of July

This Little Piggie Stayed Home

HOSPITAL CHECKING LOSS

Thieves May Be Harboring Disease-Infected Guinea Pigs

Six guinea pigs which may be diseased were stolen from an outside cage-room at Royal Jubilee Hospital Monday night and authorities are fearful that the loss may have serious complications for hospital patients. "A thing like this could be the cause of a healthy person being sent to a sanitarium," said hospital administrator George Masters this morning.

Twenty-one of the small, furry rodents are used by the hospital to detect the presence of dangerous ailments in patients where diagnosis is otherwise difficult to determine.

The animals react like humans to the presence of many different germs. If a patient is suspected of having tuberculosis, a guinea pig is injected with a serum taken from the patient's body. Reaction of the animal is proof of the illness.

"About a dozen of the animals were injected," said Mr. Masters. "As far as we know, the six that were taken were not."

But the thief may have mixed up the guinea pigs in their individual cages in choosing finest looking specimens.

"We will have to do a double check on all our experiments," he stated.

If there is a mix-up, the thief may have a diseased animal in his possession.

Police revealed that a screen door, on an outside shed where the guinea pigs are looked after by hospital gardeners, was forced. It is possible that the theft was perpetrated by youngsters who often watch the animals through a window.

Parents should question youngsters about any they have seen or heard about.

If allowed to breed, a pair of guinea pigs can produce 1,000 offspring in the space of one year.

DOG THAT WAS A BEAR FAST BECOMING A RUG

CAMPBELL RIVER—A 200-pound bear that was looking for a soft touch in Campbellton Monday night is now half way to becoming a rug.

Mrs. Frank Stapley noticed what, in twilight, appeared to be a dog in her backyard.

As she was about to chase it away it growled and came toward her. Knowing by then it was a bear, she picked up her two little children who had been playing outside, ran into her house, and locked the door.

She telephoned a neighbor, Beverly Hopkins, who set off in pursuit with a .303 rifle and one cartridge. He made his one shot count in the fast-fading light.

STORMY SEA SNATCHES SIX

Scots Lifeboatmen Drown In Sight of Own Homes

ARBROATH, Scotland, (AP)—Six lifeboatmen, weary from an all-night battle with a gale-tossed sea, were drowned early today within sight of the lights of their own homes. Only one member of the crew survived.

The 35-foot lifeboat put out Monday night in answer to a report that a vessel was in trouble off the Inchcape Rock. That rock, the graveyard of many ships, was the subject of a poem by Robert Southey.

The lifeboat failed to find a trace of the vessel it was sent out to help.

Friends and relatives gathered along the harbor wall as the returning lifeboat approached the breakwater. They watched in horror, as a giant wave caught it.

Shouts from the crew reached them as the boat was tossed onto rocks only 50 yards from shore. Then nothing could be heard but the roar of the sea and the howling of the gale.

Doug Anderson Added To Cougars' Line-Up

Victoria hockey fans were heartened today by a report from Edmonton that Doug Anderson will be joining the Cougars of the WHL for its game against Flyers there tonight.

The popular centre forward saw duty with Cougars last season before being transferred to Buffalo Bisons of the AHL this year.

CHILDREN LINE UP

New York's 12 Million Out of Milk

Thousands of Gallons Due to Go Down Drain

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

NEW YORK — Milk supplies for 12,000,000 persons dwindled rapidly today in a strike of truck drivers and plant workers while health authorities planned to dump 400,000 quarts into sewers for lack of processing.

Anxious parents carried children to milk plants where limited remaining supplies were being doled out.

Charles J. Blanford, federal state milk marketing administrator, said 400,000 quarts of raw, unpasteurized milk held in tank trucks will be dumped in sewers Wednesday if "something (presumably a settlement of the dispute) doesn't happen" by that time.

LINE UP WITH CUPS

Milk lines ranging from 500 to 1,000 persons formed up outside the city's major milk plants at an early hour to take advantage of a two quarts per customer sale on a "first come, first served" basis.

One plant official said the supply would be gone in two hours.

Children carrying glasses and tin cups lined up outside a Brooklyn milk plant, creating a scene more typical of a war-time refugee centre than the heart of New York. Similar scenes were common in northern New Jersey, which also was affected by the strike.

The striking unions are seeking a $15-a-week wage increase, a 35 instead of 40-hour work week, 11 paid holidays instead of six, improved vacations, pensions and insurance and other benefits. The pre-strike earnings of drivers on a wage and commission basis averaged $115 a week, and plant workers averaged $82 a week.

TALKS CONTINUE

City's prodding kept negotiations going early today in the wage-hour dispute between representatives of 200 companies and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), the union of the 13,000 striking drivers and plant workers.

Robert Abelow, counsel for the companies, refused to comment on a report that the dealers may ask President Eisenhower to invoke the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and seek an 80-day no-strike injunction.

TO CANONIZE POPE

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Miracles proposed for the canonization of Pope Pius X were approved today by the Vatican's congregation of rites. This, Vatican sources said, virtually cleared the way for elevation to sainthood.

A spokesman for one bank described the increase as "in line with the cost of operation." He said it is not part of a policy of "credit tightening."

A spokesman for a finance company said money borrowed at the old rate is loaned out on paper that will not be all paid back for 24 or 30 months. He did not know whether the increase would be reflected in the cost to the consumer of financing of new purchases.

8-Year Sentence

WHITBY, Ont. (BUP)—Robert Corbett, 18, of Uxbridge, was sentenced to eight years in penitentiary today for slaying his brother, Ted, after a family quarrel.

Monday's meeting between union and company heads failed to produce any compromise proposal for settling differences between the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) and the B.C. Electric, it was learned here today.

Negotiators on both sides agreed, however, to having one more meeting in an attempt to avert the threatened strike by 500 men on the lower mainland and 100 on southern Vancouver Island.

It was decided a meeting should be held Thursday. Mainland union members met Monday night in Vancouver to consider their next step. The meeting empowered its negotiating committee to fix a day for strike action if Thursday's meeting fails to solve the differences.

The union is asking for a 10 per cent wage increase. It rejected a conciliation board's recommendation that it forego wage demands and settle for fringe benefits.

A U.S. flier from Ferrum, Va., who refused to sign a germa warfare confession in spite of many days of torture said today he got the "works" from the Communists and once was even placed before a firing squad.

"The Reds put me before 15 men armed with rifles," said First Lieut. James L. Stanley, 24. "They were quite convincing. I thought, 'this is the end.'"

But they did not shoot, Stanley said, "I guess, hoping I would eventually break." He never did. Of 10 American fliers whose affidavits were presented to the United Nations yesterday, Stanley was one of two who refused to "confess."

Another technique, Evans said, was being forced "to stand at rigid attention in a hot room full of flies for periods of 12 hours, or until I passed out."

He finally could hold out no longer and "confessed."

HE'LL VOTE FOR BAN ON FIREWORKS

VANCOUVER (CP)—A firecracker thrown into a fireworks display at a suburban Burnaby drug store Monday night resulted in a $10,000 fire and serious burns to a drugist.

In "good" condition today after suffering first and second degree burns to his face and hands was Philip G. Thompson. He was burned when he tried to throw the bursting fireworks out the front door.

Red Demands Peace Threat Dean Warns

PANMUNJOM (UP)—United States special ambassador Arthur H. Dean warned the Communists today the Korean peace conference may never be held unless the Reds abandon their stubborn fight to invite neutral nations to the talks.

Dean's blunt warning was delivered to the Reds as they insisted for the second day that the current preliminary talks on the time and place of the peace conference first decide what nations will attend.

The United Nations representative told the Communists their position was "utterly unreasonable and unacceptable." He told the North Korean and Chinese Reds the UN would be willing to discuss the conference makeup only after the time and place of the political talks had been determined.

"If the Communists persist in their all-or-nothing attitude," Dean said after today's two hour and 18-minute meeting, "the onus of not having a political conference will be squarely on their shoulders."

Banks to Boost Interest Rate

To Finance Firms

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian chartered banks have advised finance companies that, effective Dec. 1, the interest rate on loans to these companies will be raised from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent.

The companies are those which handle the financing of motor cars, refrigerators, washing machines and other consumer goods.

A spokesman for one bank described the increase as "in line with the cost of operation." He said it is not part of a policy of "credit tightening."

A spokesman for a finance company said money borrowed at the old rate is loaned out on paper that will not be all paid back for 24 or 30 months. He did not know whether the increase would be reflected in the cost to the consumer of financing of new purchases.

U.S.-Russia Square off Over Torture Confessions, Germ War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Russia and the United States squared away today for a new propaganda battle over documented U.S. charges that the Communists used merciless torture to obtain false germa warfare confessions from American fliers captured in Korea.

The Russians faced almost certain repudiation—for a second time—of their well-worn charges that U.S. planes dumped disease germs on North Korean civilians.

The United States charged before the United Nations Monday that "Soviet personnel" helped Chinese and North Korean Communists extract the widely-publicized "confessions" from American prisoners. Affidavits from 10 repatriated prisoners were submitted to back up the charges.

Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik replied immediately to the charges, saying the American fliers repudiated their "confessions" to save themselves from punishment for treason.

The UN General Assembly's main political committee resumes debate on the germa warfare issue Wednesday. The Russians will make a new attempt at adoption of a once-defeated propaganda resolution aimed at embarrassing the United States.

The Soviet resolution would call on all nations to ratify the 1925 Geneva convention outlawing bacterial weapons. The United States never has ratified the convention on the ground it lacks any enforcement power and is only a paper agreement.

Introduction of the 10 American "case histories" at Monday's session made defeat of the Soviet proposal all the more certain.

Of the 107 captured U.S. airmen whom the Communists accused of engaging in germa warfare at least 14 died in Communist hands. Dr. Charles Mayo charged before the UN political committee.

Dr. Mayo, one of the founders of Rochester's famous Mayo Clinic and a member of the American delegation to the United Nations, said that many American prisoners in Korea were tortured to death in Russian-directed attempts to secure false germa war confessions.

Documenting his charges with affidavits, Dr. Mayo said 40 of the men refused to sign, and of the 36 who did sign at least 20 were subjected to "extreme and prolonged physical and mental torture."

Thirty-one of the accused fliers were not repatriated. Mayo said 14 of those are known to have died and the other 17 are still listed as missing.

In one case, Mayo said, a man was forced to dig his own grave, was taken before a firing squad, heard the command to fire, and then heard the pistols click on empty chambers. He still refused to sign.

Col. Andrew J. Evans, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., said in his affidavit that he was treated like a "low-type animal." On one occasion he went 12 days without food, and was given an ultimatum to confess or die. He said he "even begged for death so that my mental and physical pain and suffering would be ended."

Another technique, Evans said, was being forced "to stand at rigid attention in a hot room full of flies for periods of 12 hours, or until I passed out."

He finally could hold out no longer and "confessed."

Air force Col. Walker Mahurin of Fort Wayne, Ind., once was kept standing at rigid attention for 38 hours. He held out against such brutal tactics for eight months, until after the Korean truce was signed, but finally "confessed."

A U.S. flier from Ferrum, Va., who refused to sign a germa warfare confession in spite of many days of torture said today he got the "works" from the Communists and once was even placed before a firing squad.

"The Reds put me before 15 men armed with rifles," said First Lieut. James L. Stanley, 24. "They were quite convincing. I thought, 'this is the end.'"

But they did not shoot, Stanley said, "I guess, hoping I would eventually break." He never did. Of 10 American fliers whose affidavits were presented to the United Nations yesterday, Stanley was one of two who refused to "confess."

Tom Fool Retired From Racing

NEW YORK (UP)—Tom Fool, the 1953 handicap champion who set a track record while winning the Pimlico Special Saturday, has been retired from racing, his owners announced today.

Unbeaten in 10 starts this year, Tom Fool will be shipped to Kentucky early in November to stand at stud. Tom Fool's lifetime record shows 21 victories in 30 races. He earned $570,165.

Reds Blame Rhee for Prisoner Hold-Up

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Soviet United Nations delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky said today the main obstacle to the repatriation of Korean war prisoners is what he termed obstructive tactics of "agents" of South Korean President Syngman Rhee and Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Israel Offers to Stop Jordan Project

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Israel today offered to stop work on its controversial Jordan River hydro-electric water diversion project while the UN Security Council debates the issue.

Pakistan earlier asked the council to order the halting of the project until after the 11-nation body debates the rights and wrongs of the issue.

Thrifty Scot Wins Fortune for 50c

ST. FILLANU, Scotland (AP)—John Abernethy, a thrifty 29-year-old Scottish bartender, got a good return on his money today—$93,829 ($262,721) for two shillings.

Abernethy practically swept the boards on a football pool. His first dividend was $75,000 and his second dividend $18,347.

On top of all that tax-free cash, Abernethy won the third- and fourth dividends which totalled $482. Abernethy was undecided about his future in the barkeep business now that he's a rich man.

DOG THAT WAS A BEAR
FAST BECOMING A RUG

CAMPBELL RIVER—A 200-pound bear that was looking for a soft touch in Campbellton Monday night is now half way to becoming a rug.

Mrs. Frank Stapley noticed what, in twilight, appeared to be a dog in her backyard.

As she was about to chase it away it growled and came toward her. Knowing by then it was a bear, she picked up her two little children who had been playing outside, ran into her house, and locked the door.

She telephoned a neighbor, Beverly Hopkins, who set off in pursuit with a .263 rifle and one cartridge. He made his one shot count in the fast-fading light.

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be carried daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

Liberating Normandy was a supreme event in the European campaign of 1944, but it was only one of several concentric strokes upon Nazi Germany. In the east the Russians were flooding into Poland and the Balkans, and in the south Alexander's armies in Italy were pressing towards the river Po. Decisions had now to be taken about our next move in the Mediterranean, and it must be recorded with regret that these occasioned the first important divergence on high strategy between ourselves and our American friends.

Sentence for
Denis O'Brien

'Dangerous Man'
Says Judge

Denis Charles O'Brien, 28, of Victoria, was sentenced to an indeterminate prison term today by County Court Judge J. B. Clearihue on a charge of being a habitual criminal.

The sentence arose out of the accused's record of dope addiction, theft, and robbery with violence.

In addition he was sentenced to three years plus a $200 fine on a charge of possessing drugs, the sentence to run concurrently with a two-and-one-half year term meted out on a similar charge at the Fall Assizes.

"This is a dangerous man," said His Honor on passing sentence, "and the public should be protected."

O'Brien was arrested Sept. 26 at 2531 Government Street and was found to be in possession of a .263 rifle and one cartridge.

400,000
Quarts Slated
For Sewers

(From AP, UP Dispatches)

NEW YORK — Milk supplies for 12,000,000 persons dwindled rapidly today in a strike of truck drivers and plant workers while health authorities planned to dump 400,000 quarts into sewers for lack of processing.

Anxious parents carried children to milk plants where limited remaining supplies were being doled out.

Charles J. Blanford, federal-state milk marketing administrator, said 400,000 quarts of raw, unpasteurized milk held in tank trucks will be dumped in sewers Wednesday if "something (presumably a settlement of the dispute) doesn't happen" by that time.

LINE UP WITH CUPS

Milk lines ranging from 500 to 1,000 persons formed up outside the city's major milk plants at an early hour to take advantage of a two quarts per customer sale on a "first come, first served" basis.

One plant official said the supply would be gone in two hours.

Children carrying glasses and tin cups lined up outside a Brooklyn milk plant, creating a scene more typical of a war-time refugee centre than the heart of New York. Similar scenes were common in northern New Jersey, which also was affected by the strike.

The striking unions are seeking a $15-a-week wage increase, a 35 instead of 40-hour work week, 11 paid holidays instead of six, improved vacations, pensions and insurance and other benefits. The pre-strike earnings of drivers on a wage and commission basis averaged $115 a week, and plant workers averaged $82 a week.

TALKS CONTINUE

City prodding kept negotiations going early today in the wage-hour dispute between representatives of 200 companies and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), the union of the 13,000 striking drivers and plant workers.

Robert Abelow, counsel for the companies, refused to comment on a report that the dealers may ask President Eisenhower to invoke the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and seek an 80-day no-strike injunction.

Desire for Talks
With Eisenhower

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today there "are few things I would like better than to have a few quiet and informal talks" with President Eisenhower.

Lost Baby-Sitter
Thought Victim
Of Sex Maniac

LA CROSSE, Wis. (UP)—Tension mounted in this Mississippi River city today as police and volunteers pressed a round-the-clock search for baby-sitter Evelyn Hartley, feared to be the victim of a sex maniac.

The attractive 15-year-old high school girl disappeared Saturday night from a La Crosse State College professor's home where she was minding a 20-month-old baby.

Britain Tests
'Revolutionary'
Atom Device

AUSTRALIA (UP)—Britain tested an atomic device "of revolutionary character today—apparently an atomic warhead for rockets."

The test, described officially as "major," was carried out in the vast, desolate area of the central Australian desert which has been set aside for rocket tests.
